In the Spotlight

Although Moline High School students begin high school with the eventual goal of receiving a diploma, they inevitably find themselves doing much more than studying.

Each MHS student finds him or herself in the spotlight for one reason or another at least once before graduating. Some shine in athletics on the field or the court. Others find themselves staring into a spotlight while performing on the stage. Many students have a sense of being in the spotlight when they ace a difficult test, cheer a team to victory, serve others, attend a club meeting, or make a difference at school. No matter where they find their spotlights, MHS students create memories that will last a lifetime and learn lessons that will be valuable forever.

Finishing their half-time performance, drummers Sam Mesick and Ryan Sivertsen perform the MHS fight song "Moliners." The drum line, along with the rest of the marching band, added spirit and enthusiasm to home football games.

Anticipating the start of the first home football game of the season, these Superfans display their abundance of school spirit. Before each game, seniors painted themselves and prepared to cheer until the football team was victorious.

Enjoying their study halls and a warm fall day, these seniors take advantage of the Senior Patio. Used by many seniors as a place to spend a free period with their friends, the Senior Patio and its gazebo is popular during nice weather.

Preparing for an interesting literature discussion in Honors English II, these sophomores recall what they have read. Although most students prefer to participate in extracurricular activities, studying for tests, completing homework, and adding to discussions are how high school students must spend a large amount of time.

The Director's Cut.....

Below: Blazing in the bonfire are shirts depicting Moline's Western Big Six rivals. MHS athletes hope to burn the competition on the field, course, and court, like they are being burned in the flames.

The Fall Sports Rally kicks off the sports calendar for the new school year. In addition to taking pictures, each athletic team for the fall season struts their stuff around the Brown-ing track. Those not participating on an athletic team get the first chance to show their school spirit that night. After the athletes have paraded around the track, the annual bonfire begins. Chrissy Derouin, Student Congress President, and Mitch Monson, Senior Class President, lit the bonfire to begin the 2003-2004 sports season. As the bonfire died down, the seniors took a picture in front of a Moline Fire Department firetruck. Then, senior cross country captain Erik Steffens and volleyball captain Nikki Hansen gave a speech to motivate and inspire the Maroons to do well in the upcoming season. They also urged fans to attend games and enthusiastically support their athletic peers. After their speeches, 98.9 provided music for the student body in attendance. The impromptu dance was a great way to initiate the sports season and the school year.

...Fall Sports Rally

Proudly displaying their maroon and white, the football players journey around the track at Browning Field. All teams participate in this parade, and all fall athletes are recognized.

Balancing carefully, these cheerleaders perform stunts for the crowd in the stands. After the completion of the parade around the track, the cheerleaders fired up the crowd with spirit cheers.

Preparing to give their speeches at the Fall Sports Rally, Erik Steffens and Nikki Hansen pose for a quick picture. Both athletes excel in their individual sports and are a great motivation for all athletes.

Lighting up the night sky, the flames of the bonfire attract a large crowd. The bonfire is always a huge success and a popular attraction at the Sports Rally.

After team pictures and the parade around the track, a large crowd gathered around the platform to listen to speeches from student athletes, dance, and jump start the fall sports season.

The Director's Cut.....

Left: Tipping their hats to their last Hoe-Down, seniors Tara Willard, Emily Kelly, Emily DeBisschop, Alex Hallene, Jaimi Colvin, Lars Moen, Abby Lester, and Keeley Rosenthal show their excitement and enthusiasm for their final Hoe Down.

Below: Helping to perfect Mallory Robinson's Hoe Down outfit, Jamie Dunlap ties her bandanna. Although bandannas, cowboy boots, and flannel shirts are not exactly fashionable, they are in high demand for the Hoe Down.

For the second year in a row, the annual Hoe-Down was held at the Riverside tennis courts. The Hoe-Down serves as the first dance of the school year. Each class was well represented and a fun time was had by all who attended. The seniors were especially enthusiastic, for this dance marks the first of many lasts in their final year at MHS. Highlights of the night included the conga line, square dancing, the Bunny Hop, and the limbo, which were all very popular. Line dancing was offered by instructors and was well received by the cow boys and girls in attendance. The members of each class took breaks from the dance to have their pictures taken in the corner of the tennis courts. Cowboy hats, overalls, bandannas, huge belt buckles, and cowboy boots added to the Country Western atmosphere of the night. The most challenging event of the night was the sit line, which put students' balance and patience to the test. With previous sitline experience on their side, the seniors provided the perfect example for underclassmen. For most students, the Hoe Down was the perfect way to begin the new school year.

...Hoe Down

After surviving their first Hoe Down, these freshmen throw their hats up in excitement. The Hoe Down provides freshmen with their first high school dance experience.

Proving that you don't need a date, Kevin Powell and Steve Miller join in on one of the night's many square dances. The Hoe Down really takes off the pressure of finding a date.

Waiting for the sit line to begin, Eric Alonzo and Angie Jones listen carefully for instructions. Patience and concentration are vital in completing this task.

With country music playing in the background, Jason Parrish and DeAnna Steagall dance to the beat. Some students prefer to make up their own moves to the twangy tunes.

The limbo, a long time tradition at the Hoe Down, is a favorite Hoe Down event. Students struggle to stay on their feet while testing their flexibility by attempting to pass under the limbo bar.

The Director's Cut.....

Left: Despite the anxieties of Coronation, newly crowned royalty Mitch Monson, Ashley Spellings, Wes McCorkle, and Keeley Rosenthal are all smiles. These seniors were named Homecoming Prince, Queen, King, and Princess because they received the greatest number of votes from the student body.

Below: With one last glance in the mirror, Chrissy Derouin checks to make sure everything is just right before she steps out on stage. For the members of the Homecoming Court, it is imperative to look nice, and a lot of time is spent perfecting hair and make-up.

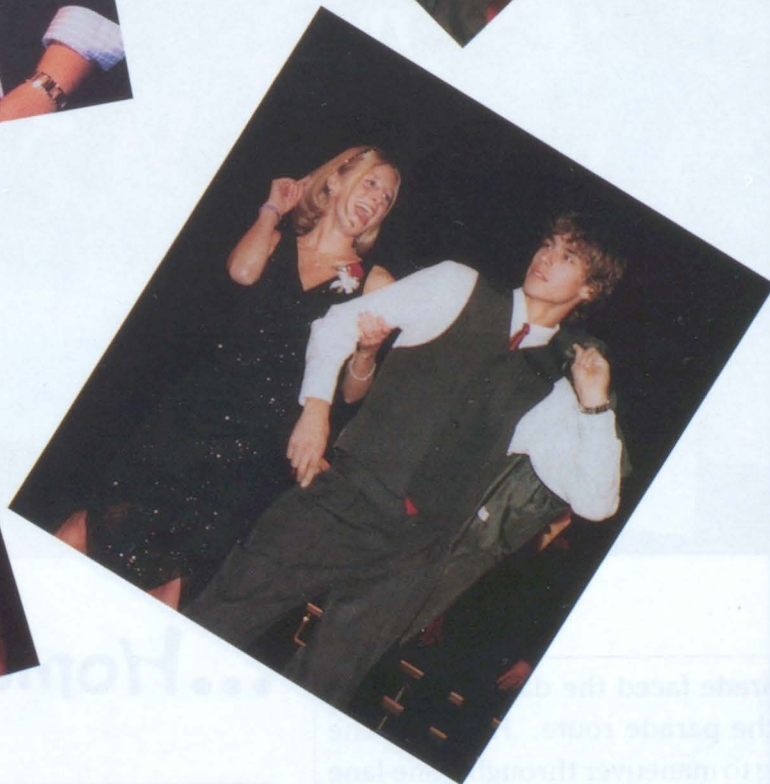

Coronation was held on the afternoon of Monday, September 29th. The Coronation ceremony officially began the "Hollywood" Homecoming Week. After the jazz band began the ceremony and the concert choir sang the alma mater, Thomas Cornelis and Karen Spitzfaden announced each member of the court as Sruthi Gondi and Alex Hallene escorted them on the "red carpet." The members of the Homecoming Court were chosen by the senior class, and then the entire student body voted for King and Queen. The 2003 Homecoming Court consisted of Sean Turnipseed, D'Ann Wicks, Nicholas Schroder, Sarah Tristan, Austin Vallejo, Aubree Carius, Kevin Chumbley, Tamara Reed, Derek Friesth, Allison Anderson, Aaron Cook, Linnea DePooter, Bill Rogers, Jade Wubben, Dan Thorngren, Chrissy Derouin, Joey Horn, Kelsey Malmstead, Lars Moen, and Katie Herr. The Prince and Princess were Mitch Monson and Keeley Rosenthal. Thunderous applause and a standing ovation followed the crowning of Wesley McCorkle and Ashley Spellings as King and Queen.

...Coronation

Serving as Coronation announcers, T.J. Cornelis and Karen Spitzfaden introduced each member of the Court with a short biography and announced the royalty at the end of the ceremony.

Showing off their most macho poses are court members Derek Friesth, Joey Horn, Sean Turnipseed, Lars Moen, Bill Rogers, Aaron Cook, Austin Vallejo, Nick Schroder, and Kevin Chumbley.

Enjoying their stroll down the red carpet after the ceremony, Aubree Carius and Austin Vallejo show off their supermodel looks. During this time, court members were able to just have fun.

Although not members of the court, escorts Alex Hallene and Sruthi Gondi played an important role in Coronation. As escorts for the ceremony, they led each member of the court on stage.

Following the announcement of king and queen, the entire court assembled on stage for a group picture. These students were nominated by their fellow classmates to become Court members.

The Director's Cut.....

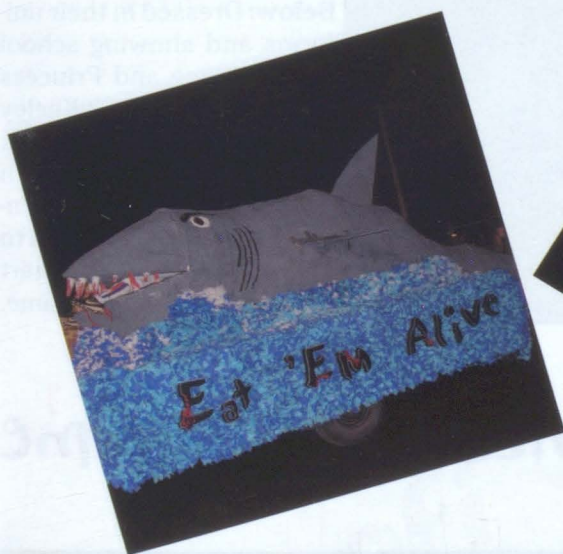

Left: As they enjoy the sights and sounds of the Avenue of the Cities from the top of a flatbed trailer, Spanish Club members depict characters from Pirates of the Caribbean. Although many clubs and organizations do not have elaborate floats in the Homecoming Parade, the Spanish Club chose to enter something that portrayed Spanish culture and also related to the Homecoming theme of Hollywood.

Below: Waving happily, Homecoming Queen Ashley Spellings and Homecoming King Wesley McCorkle cruise down the Avenue of the Cities during the parade. Each of the Court couples rode in the parade in a convertible and was introduced to all of the spectators.

The 2003 Homecoming parade faced the daunting task of road construction along the parade route. However, the parade marched on, having to maneuver through a one-lane road at 27th Street. Despite this fact, the parade was an overall success due to all of the hardwork done by classes, clubs, advisors, and Homecoming Parade Chairs Katie Herr and Keeley Rosenthal. During Homecoming week each class met to build its float, strengthen and create friendships, and have fun. The Seniors' final floatbuilding experience was rewarded with a first place finish for their float depicting Monsters Inc. The Freshmen received second place for the dog van from Dumb and Dumber. The Juniors came in third place for their country western scene, and the Sophomores finished fourth place with a great white shark from Jaws. In addition to class floats, numerous clubs, organizations, and athletic teams were represented in the parade along the Avenue of the Cities. The Marching Band, Flag Corps, and Contemporaires began the parade, and the Homecoming Court rode in convertibles.

...Homecoming Parade

Receiving top honors in the Floatbuilding contest was this float constructed by the senior class. It was designed to look like monsters from the Disney movie Monsters Inc. playing football.

Choosing to portray a genre of movies instead of a specific movie, the junior class constructed a third place float representing western movies. The side of the float said, "The good, the bad, and Quincy."

Although they were new to the floatbuilding scene, the freshman class placed second with their Dumb and Dumber float. This was perfect for the inexperienced, clueless, and "dumb" freshmen.

Depicting a classic, but somewhat morbid shark from Jaws, the sophomore float placed fourth. Despite their last place finish, sophomores were still able to come together as a class.

Beginning the parade with their routine to the marching band's rendition of "Hey Baby" from Dirty Dancing, the Flag Corps marches down the Avenue of the Cities.

The Director's Cut.....

Left: Running through the "M" banner, the varsity football team prepares for the start of the Homecoming football game against Quincy. Although Quincy won the game, the MHS team put forth a good Homecoming effort and played a good game.

Below: Dressed in their uniforms and showing school spirit, Prince and Princess Mitch Monson and Keeley Rosenthal are recognized at the football game. Each member of the Homecoming Court was introduced to the crowd before the start of the varsity football game.

The afternoon's parade got fans fired up for Friday night's Homecoming game against the Quincy Blue Devils. Just like the parade, the evening's events stuck to the Hollywood theme for Homecoming. At the beginning of the game, the members of the Homecoming Court were introduced and the winner of the float building contest was announced. The seniors were victorious with their float and were ready for another victory on the football field. The Maroons posted a good start and were leading after two quarters. The marching band provided musical entertainment while the Contemporaires danced to The Pink Panther at halftime. The game continued, and with only eight minutes left, the Maroons led 15-12. However, a Quincy football player returned a kick off for a seventy-six yard return to give the Blue Devils their first conference football victory. Quincy edged out the Maroons 19-15. Despite defeat, the cheerleaders and Superfans kept the student body excited throughout the game, and they cheered the Maroons to a near victory.

...Homecoming Game

Enthusiastically cheering for the crowd, cheerleaders Laura Gustafson and Jamie Emerson help keep the fans excited. Although MHS was not always winning, the cheerleaders kept a positive attitude.

Contemporaires Sarah Stafford, Anna Harkey, and Nikki Fisher perform a dance to "The Pink Panther." Staying true to the Homecoming theme, the halftime show was centered on cartoons.

Flute players Lauren Jump and Erin Smith entertain fans during the halftime show. Because it was Homecoming, the band worked especially hard on their cartoon-themed performance.

Carrying their flags, these Flag Corps members march off the field after completing their halftime show. The Flag Corps performed a routine to the cartoon theme songs that the band played.

Ready for some action, Superfans Bryn Lawrence, Ian Leatherman, Brent Vandamme, Stewart Reese, Matt Buckles, Bill Hayes, Alex Gulley, and Mourad Belahsen cheer the maroons to victory.

The Director's Cut.....

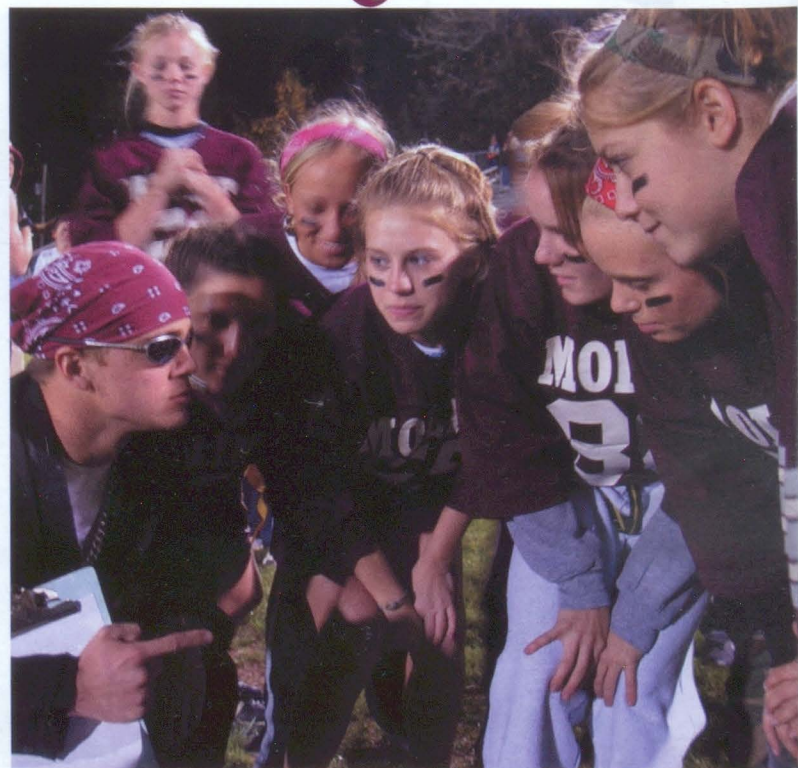

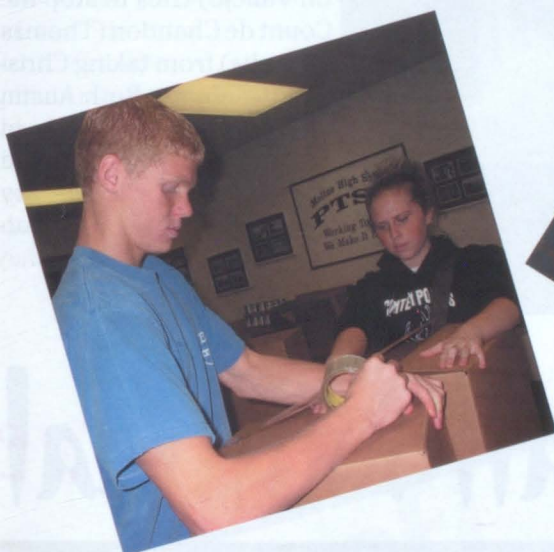

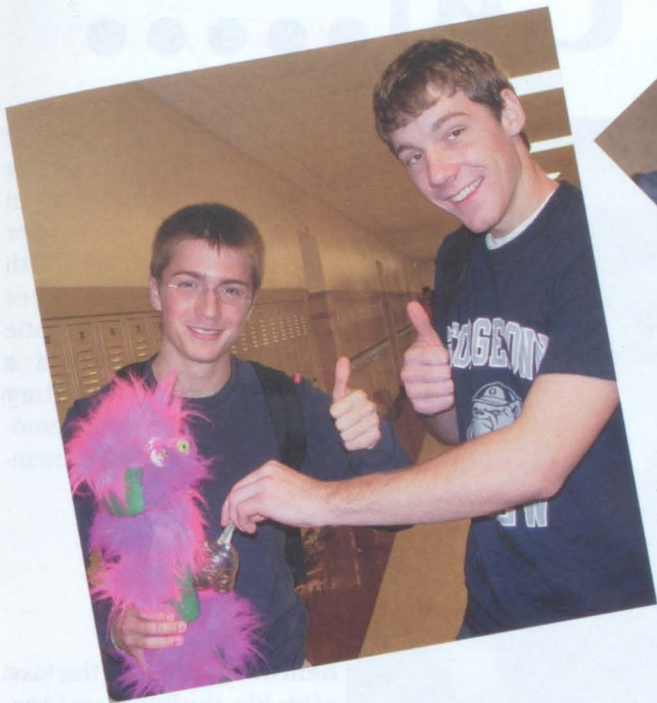

Left: Lifting a box of canned goods into the truck, Reagan Hanne and Kelsey Lovell help to finish the Student Hunger Drive on Loading Day. For Key Club members, Loading Day means getting out of school to lift heavy boxes and take them to be weighed.

Below: Getting some last minute advice and motivation from their coach Lars Moen, these members of the Senior Powderpuff Football team huddle before running on the field. Motivated by the Student Hunger Drive, the senior girls pulled together and beat the juniors and raised a lot of money for the cause.

Moline High School raised an impressive 122,137 pounds of food to receive third place in the Student Hunger Drive Division I competition. New Key Club advisors Sasha Sausedo and Scott Ehlers had to fill big shoes, for Mr. Seitz retired last year. Nonetheless, they worked hard with their club for over two months to raise money and collect cans of food. The Key Club held many events to raise money for the Student Hunger Drive, such as the Powderpuff Football game, the faculty-student softball game, the Faculty Talent Show, Feed the Can, and trick-or-treat for cans. In addition, the Key Club started a new event called Mr. Moline. Six senior guys took part in the "beauty" pageant. Sean Turnipseed won the first annual Mr. Moline crown for his high energy, humor, and interpretive dance. Alec Lance won the Mr. Congeniality award for raising the most money. The Mr. Moline competition raked in $1,400 and will be a tradition enjoyed by future classes. Although Moline did not win first place in the competition, students still learned the value of helping those less fortunate.

...Hunger Drive

Demonstrating a fun and easy way to donate money, Dan Thorngren "feeds the can" and deposits money into Key Club member Erik Steffens' crazy looking Student Hunger Drive can.

Participating in the annual Student-Faculty softball game, Ryan Bunch, Adam Bloom, and Reagan Hanne try to score a run. The faculty team was victorious, but all proceeds benefited the Hunger Drive.

With twinkies smeared all over his face, Sean Turnipseed finishes his talent in the Mr. Moline competition. Sean raised money, competed against other guys, and was named Mr. Moline.

As they tape up a box filled with canned goods, Alec Lance and Krystle Gravitt prepare for Loading Day. Key Club members spent many hours getting boxes ready to be loaded before Loading Day.

As they carefully pack canned goods into a box, Katie Herr and Mallory Jackson make sure to pack as efficiently as possible. Boxes had to be packed and taped before Loading Day.

The Director's Cut.....

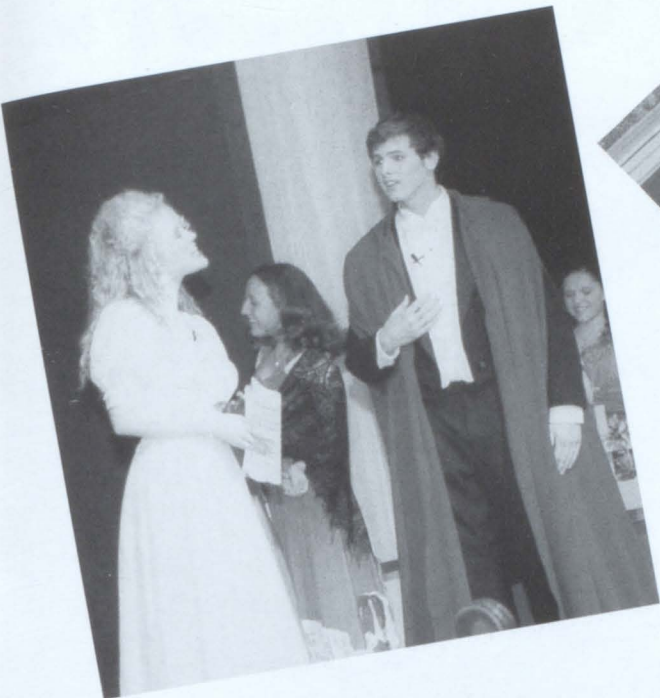

Left: Trying to hide his love for Christine (Katie Weigandt), the Phantom (Austin Vallejo) invites her on a romantic picnic. With their superb singing voices and dramatic talent, Katie and Austin portrayed a heart-wrenching love story that captivated the emotions of each audience member.

Below: Fighting for the love of his life, the Phantom (Austin Vallejo) tries to stop the Count de Chandon (Thomas Cornelis) from taking Christine from him. Both Austin and Thomas worked hard to perfect this scene, and they made it believable by showing emotions of jealousy and love.

The musical Phantom graced the Moline stage for the first time on November 13th, 14th, and 15th. The story unfolds on the streets of Paris where Christine Daae, played by Katie Weigandt, is selling and singing a song. The Count de Chandon, a wealthy opera patron and playboy performed by Thomas Cornelis, quickly gives her his card and sends her to the Paris Opera House for lessons. Meanwhile, the Phantom, played by Austin Vallejo, realizes that the former manager and his protector Gerard Carriere, played by Lars Moen, has been dismissed. Carlotta, performed by Katherine Zerull, and Cholet, played by Alex Ryser, take over. The diva Carlotta refuses to give Christine lessons and puts her in the costume department. The Phantom overhears her singing and falls in love with her voice. He begins giving her lessons deep below the opera house where he lives. With his help, Christine gains a leading role in the opera. The plot thickens as Christine is swooned by the charming Count de Chandon and Carlotta plays a trick on her. Directed by Mr. Ron May and Mrs. Erin Lounsberry and accompanied by a pit orchestra, Phantom left many audiences in tears.

...Fall Musical

After hearing Christine (Katie Weigandt) singing on the streets of Paris, the Count de Chandon (Thomas Cornelis) recognizes her talent and sends her to the opera house for lessons.

Discussing how they are going to rid the Opera Company of the Phantom, Carlotta (Katherine Zerull) and Cholet (Alex Ryser) scheme and sing. These antagonists added humor to the performance.

In a scene packed with emotion, Gerard Carriere (Lars Moen) tells the Phantom (Austin Vallejo) that he is his father. This news comes as the Phantom is on the verge of death.

With an emotional dance, Alys Grimes and Matt Nimrick portray the Phantom's parents as a young couple who are in love and give birth to a child with a hideous face.

As he announces the arrival of Christine in her first performance with the Opera Company, Craig McFarland cannot help but smile at the onlookers waiting to hear Christine's amazing voice.

The Director's Cut.....

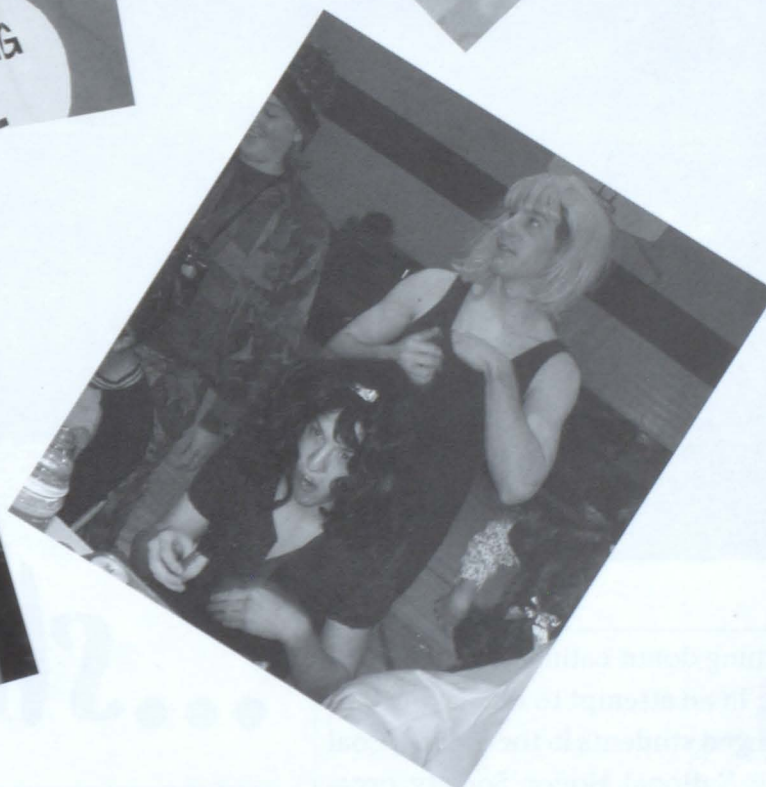

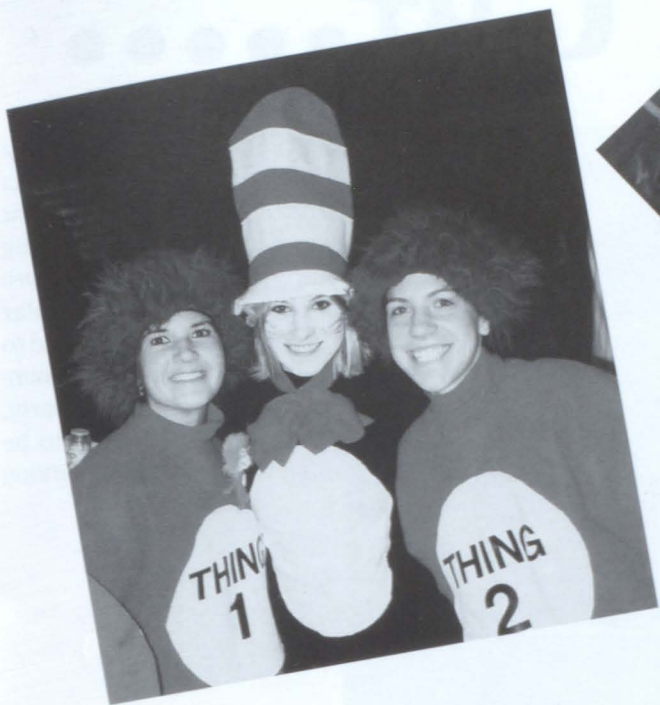

Left: Trying to finish all of his donuts, Matt Buckles shoves donuts into his mouth as his manager Erik Steffens watches the competition. Matt was named Donut King after eating all of the donuts on his tray within ten minutes and quickly devouring a donut in the suspenseful eat-off.

Below: Fighting for the title of Donut Queen, Stephanie Reagan and Chrissy Derouin race to swallow an entire donut. Because so many girls finished the donuts on their tray in the first ten minutes, an eat-off was necessary to determine the winner. Although it was a close and suspenseful race, Chrissy chewed her donut more quickly than Stephanie and was named Donut Queen.

To jump start the 2003 Share Joys festivities, the annual Donut Eating Contest was held on December 3rd in the East Gym. Donut eaters and their managers arrived dressed in creative costumes before 7 AM and prepared their stomachs for the upcoming challenge. Each participant was given a tray of eighteen donuts and ten minutes in which to devour them. Mr. Tresnak, Mr. Bohnsack, Ms. Sausedo, and Mr. Prybil patrolled the area and penalized any cheaters. At the end of the ten minutes, each participant who had finished all ten donuts and had not been caught cheating participated in an eat-off that challenged donut eaters (and their stomachs) to finish one donut as quickly as possible. At the end of the girls' eat-off, Chrissy Derouin was crowned Donut Queen, and at the end of the guys' eat-off, Matt Buckles was crowned Donut King. Carrie Daly and Karen Spitzfaden received the "Top Banana" award for raising $1009. Mallory Jackson, Katie Herr, Hannah Swanson, and their Cat in the Hat outfits won the "Best Costume" award. With all the money raised, the Donut Eating Contest was the perfect beginning to two weeks of Share Joys fun festivities.

...Donut Eating Contest

Showing off their Cat in the Hat costumes, Katie Herr, Mallory Jackson, and Hannah Swanson prove that you don't have to eat donuts to be a winner. The team received the Best Costume Award.

Sneakily hiding donuts in her costume, Jackie Grimes hopes she does not get caught cheating. Each year contestants come up with new and creative ways to hide the donuts they do not finish.

As he slyly puts a donut in his dress, Dan Thorngren watches to make sure that no one sees him helping Jeremy Saunders "finish" all of the donuts.

Dressed as Santa and Mrs. Claus, Bryan Hallene and Joey Thorngren know what the Donut Eating Contest is all about - wearing outrageous costumes that are good for hiding donuts.

Making sure everything is in order, Mr. Tresnak does his best to prevent the hiding of donuts and other forms of cheating that occur. Mr. Tresnak is the host of the contest and enforces the no-cheating rules.

The Director's Cut.....

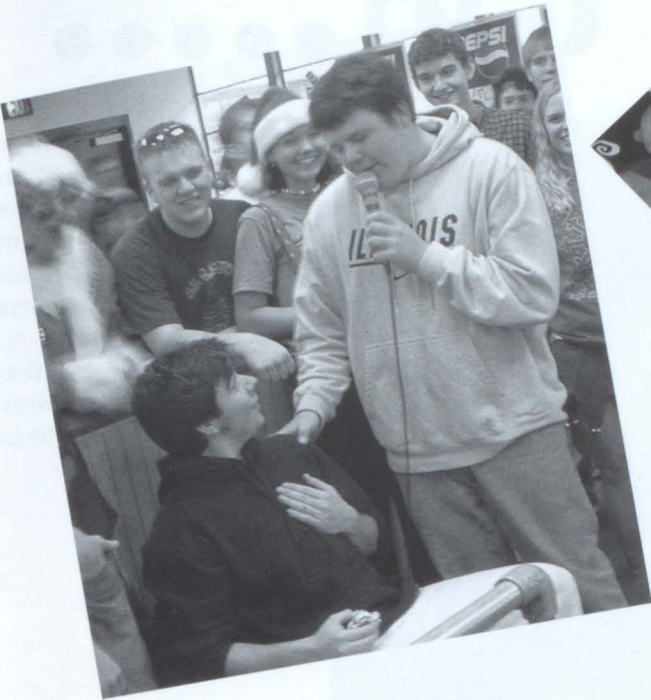

Left: Observing a pair of pants, Emily Griffin checks to see if they are the right size. Because the shopping had to be completed before Sears opened for regular customers, shoppers had to be at the mall before sunrise. Although it was early, students were happy to be helping others and working for a good cause.

Below: Calculating her purchases, Abby Mueser makes sure she has not exceeded her budget. Due to their hard work during Share Joys week, shoppers were able to buy a lot of clothes for the children they were assigned.

After an exciting early morning donut eating contest, Share Joys 2003 was in full swing. In an attempt to raise money to buy clothes for underprivileged students in the Moline/Coal Valley School District, the National Honor Society organized two weeks of fundraising activities. A volleyball game between the varsity football team and the varsity volleyball team raised a considerable amount of money and provided an entertaining evening. Rocking for Share Joys, a new event, gave students a chance to support a good cause and listen to their favorite student bands. The Special Education Department sponsored a pancake breakfast, and National Honor Society members dressed up as elves to sell candy, cookies, and raffle tickets. At lunch, many students chose to eat ridiculous things or perform outrageous stunts in exchange for money for Share Joys. For two days, school was in recess, and students were able to pay to watch movies, eat junk food, play cards, sing Karaoke, or attend the National Honor Society Variety Show during class. In all, $43,133.58 was raised, and students spent Saturday morning at Sears buying clothes for over 200 children.

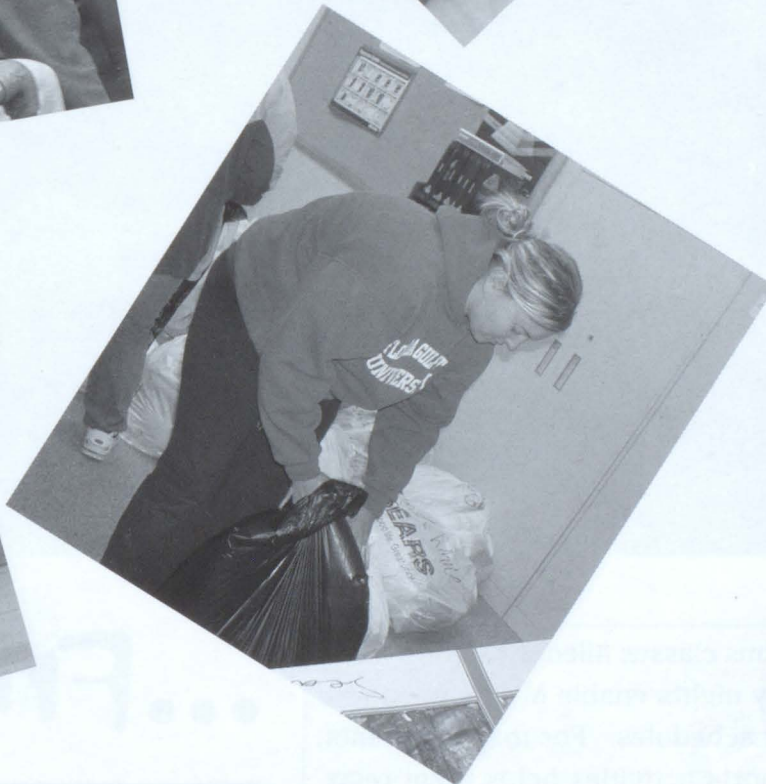

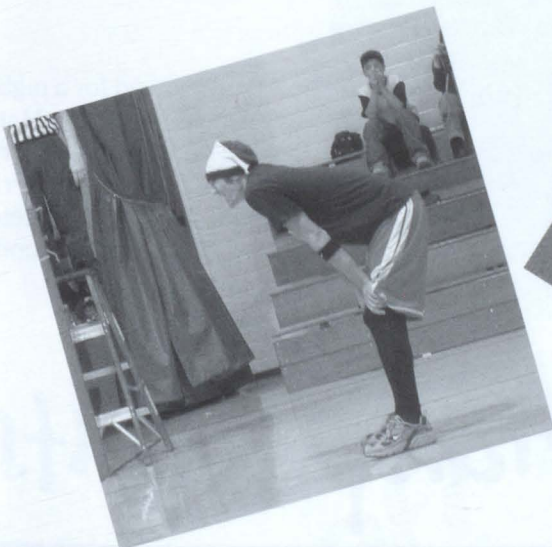

...Share Joys

Serenading his brother Alex Hallene in the cafeteria during lunch, Jimmy Hallene helps raise money for Share Joys. Students pay money to see acts such as these performed.

Celebrating the successful variety show, NHS members enjoy the last song. The show was a huge success among fellow students due to all of the hard work put in by everyone involved.

Putting the final touches on her purchases, Cara Church wraps her bag before delivering it to her child. Ribbons and bows were available for shoppers to give their bags a festive feel.

Catching his breath during the game against the girl's volleyball team, football player Keith Hooks helps out his team. Both teams had fun while raising money for a great cause.

Raising a large sum of money for Share Joys, students in the Business Department sell popcorn and pop to students who have classes in third floor B-Wing.

The Director's Cut.....

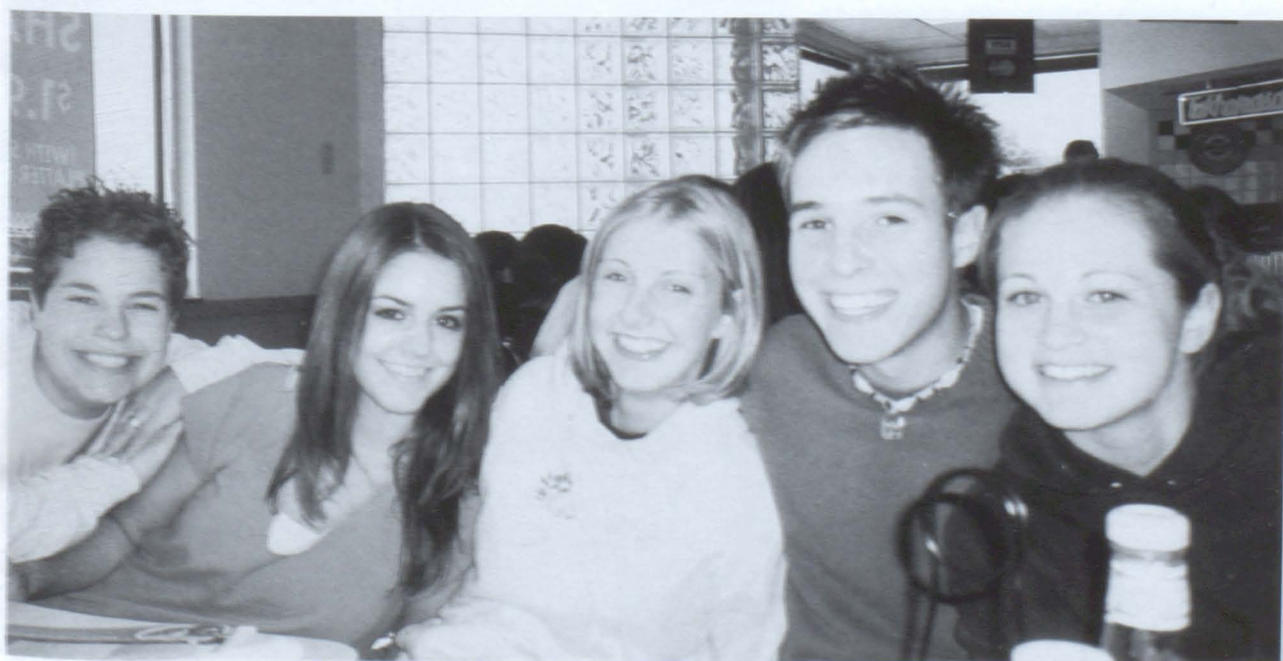

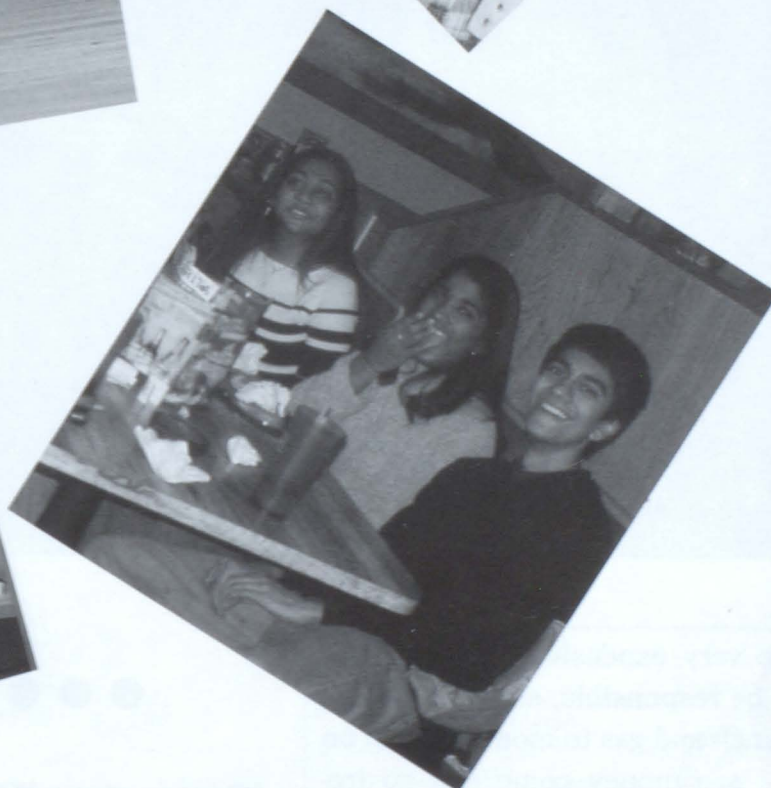

Left: Enjoying the atmosphere at their favorite Mexican restaurant, Tom Teslik, Luke Lester, and Zach DeBlaey display their sombreros. For these guys, going out to dinner is not just about eating – they know how to take advantage of their surroundings.

Below: Prepared for a night of fun with friends, Matt Nimrick supplies the party with Papa John's pizza. Friday nights are not complete without friends, junk food, and good times.

After a long week of rigorous classes filled with homework, projects, and tests, Friday nights enable MHS students to unwind from their hectic schedules. For many students, attending Friday night sports activities helps them relax. Others enjoy watching movies, spending time with that special someone, going to coffee shops, watching local bands play, driving around, or just hanging out with a group of friends. The Quad City Area provides a wide range of activities to do. Students can enjoy cheering on one of the local professional sports teams – the Mallards, the Steamwheelers, or the Swing. Students interested in the arts can enjoy the many symphonies, operas, musicals, choir performances, and plays performed at The Adler, Augustana, St. Ambrose, and other Quad City venues. Many students head to the District of Rock Island on their weekends to hang out at a coffee shop, restaurant, festival, Comedy Sportz, or the Brew and View to see an independent or classic film. Another popular alternative for weekends is to do nothing or very little. Relaxation is the key to preparing for another exhausting week of class.

...Friday Nights

Releasing his bowling ball with perfection, Evan Nelson aims for a strike. Bowling is very popular on the weekends because it allows students to compete with their friends while still having fun.

Taking advantage of the seasonably nice weather, Alysse Anderson, LeAnn Smith, Laura Griffith, and Brianna Skovronski spend their Friday night enjoying a hay rack ride.

Engrossed in conversation and catching up on the week's activities, Sruthi Gondi, Bhanupriya Sirandas and Parag Dadhaniya enjoy their dinner at Carlos O'Kelly's.

Contemplating which piece to paint at Fireworks, Becca Anderson tries to let her creative juices flow. Fireworks' atmosphere makes it a very popular hang out among students.

Debating over what to do for the rest of the night, Autumn Bennett, Melissa Graf, Katherine Priggie, Bill Rogers, and Mary Walas enjoy a delicious dinner at Steak and Shake.

The Director's Cut.....

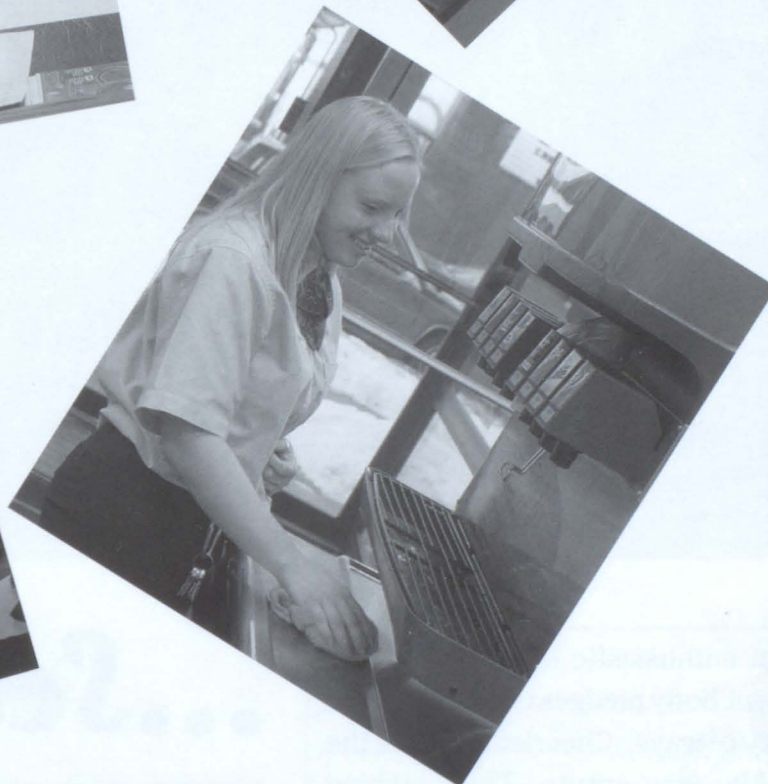

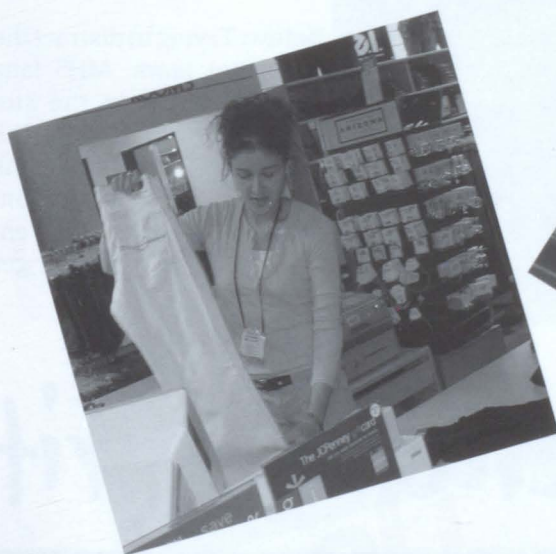

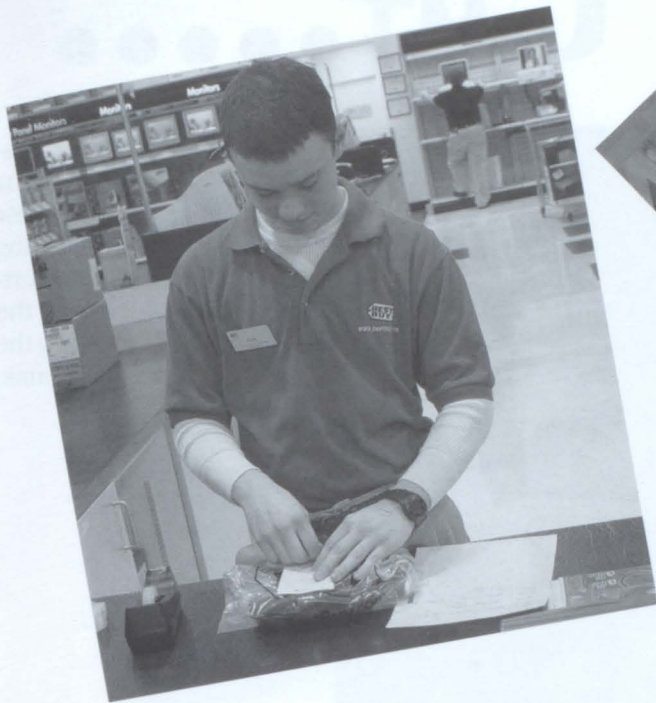

Left: Diligently scanning groceries at the checkout counter, Vanessa Torres works hard at Hy-Vee. Hy-Vee is a popular place for many high school students to work because they offer a good salary and are flexible in scheduling.

Below: Replacing the display case with freshly baked cookies, Subway employees Brianna Skovronski and Lauren Cross work together. Teamwork is an important asset of any job.

Being a teenager can be very expensive. High school students are required to be responsible, especially financially. From money for lunch and gas to money for fun on the weekends, students see money come and go frequently. A gallon of gas can cost nearly two dollars, and a ticket to an evening movie is $8.50. Buying coffee with friends after school is slightly cheaper, but it can quickly add up. To pay for all these expenses, many students resort to getting part-time jobs. High school students have a wide array of jobs varying in hours, pay, and even pleasure. Many students choose to work at Hy-Vee or at Whitey's with a large number of their peers. Other students have more unique jobs. Some babysit, some tutor, some give music lessons, and some have a band that performs for money. Juggling homework, social activities, and a job proves to be extremely challenging. Students with jobs quickly learn the importance of organization, hard work, responsibility, and team work. Having a job teaches valuable life skills that will lead to success later in life, and it allows students to have financial freedom.

...Working

Repacking recently returned items is just one of the many jobs Andy Hutchins is trained to do at Best Buy. Andy is also trained to work in other areas of the store, which gives him variety while working.

Carefully mixing paint at Fireworks, Julie Campagna experiments with new combinations of colors. Working at a place like Fireworks allows Julie's artistic side to shine.

Wiping up spills from the pop machine is just one of Sara Pemberton's many duties while working her shift at Hardee's. A clean environment is an essential element of any business.

Neatly folding a pair of pants, Ana Raya tries to please her customers at JC Penney's in SouthPark mall. The variety of stores in the mall offers a wide range of employment opportunities.

Organizing the shelves at Jewel, Josh Wilhelm makes sure everything is in order. Josh also walks the aisles and assists customers to enhance their shopping experience.

The Director's Cut.....

Left: Displaying their maroon and white, these fans show their support for their fellow Maroons by making some noise. During sporting events, fans assume the responsibility of getting the crowd involved in the game.

Below: Trying to distract the opposing team, MHS fans wave balloons in the student section. Led by the senior superfans, the fans at basketball games constantly yell cheers to encourage the team and get everyone excited.

The encouragement from enthusiastic fans is vital to a team's success. The student body pledges their support at athletic groups in a variety of ways. Cheerleaders line the sidelines to keep up the Maroons' spirits. The marching and pep bands play "Moliner's" to unite the Moline fans to rise to their feet and clap and cheer in unison. The contemporaries also add to the school spirit by entertaining the fans during halftime, when the athletes take a much-needed break to prepare for the second half. Students not participating in these events flock to the student section, where the Superfans play an important role by leading cheers, keeping fans on their feet, and intimidating the other team's players and fans. The Superfans, comprised of mostly Seniors, display their devoted school spirit by "painting up" in maroon and white, making shirts to show their support for the Maroons, and traveling to road games where Moline fans are outnumbered. Through showing their school spirit, the student body comes together to strengthen friendships, make memories, and have fun!

...School Spirit

Working carefully so as to not smear her design, Destiny Bethel paints with maroon and white paint on Sean DeBuysere before the Super Sectional game.

Involved in the action of the game, these Superfans get the crowd pumped up. Superfans are present at most athletic events and play a vital role in the spirit of both the team and surrounding fans.

Displaying their elaborately designed bodies, these superfans are the perfect example of what happens when die-hard fans mix with body paint. Superfans meet before each game to get painted up.

Screaming at the top of his lungs in order to distract the opposing team and encourage the Maroons, Andrew Sadler demonstrates the life of a true MHS fan.

Taking a break from playing in the pep band, Nick Laird, Ben Harvey, Scott Griffith, Josh Wilhelm, and Jake Langley make some noise to cheer the basketball team on to victory.

The Director's Cut.....

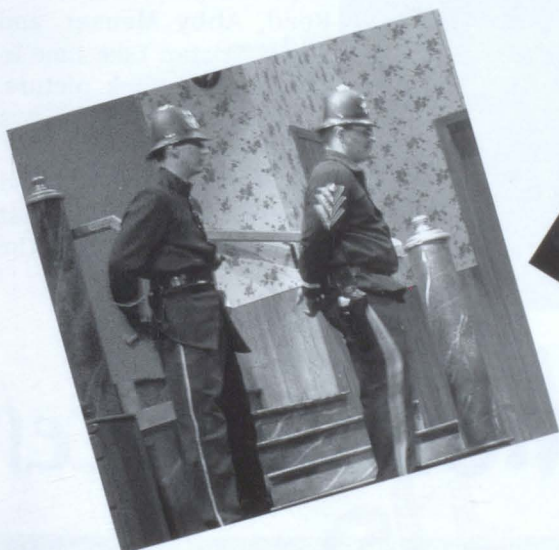

Left: Dr. Einstein, played by Luke Thompson, argues with his patient Jonathon Brewster, played by Scott Patton. Running from the law and other gangsters, the team has returned to Jonathon's home in hope that they can reconstruct Jonathon's face to conceal his true identity.

Below: Mortimer Brewster and Elaine Harper (performed by Erik Steffens and Alyssa Grimes) have just been engaged. However, as Mortimer learns of his relatives' eccentric habits, he has little time to entertain his new fiancée.

Moved from the spring to the winter, K.C. Eppel's play got an earlier showcase this year. However, the change in date was the only difference, for Mrs. Eppel's play again displayed superb entertainment and talent. Arsenic and Old Lace is a classic comedic play that leaves the audience roaring in laughter. On February 6th and 7th, the MHS stage was home to the Brewster family, which has a history of lunacy. Katherine Zerull and Kassie Caldwell play Aunt Martha and Aunt Abby respectively. The two aunts invite strangers to rent from their extra room, and then put arsenic in their wine to "relieve lonely men of their sorrows." The insanity is passed on in the family to three eccentric nephews: Teddy, Alex Ryser, who thinks he is Teddy Roosevelt; Jonathon Brewster, Scott Patton, who has returned home on the run; and Mortimer Brewster, Erik Steffens, who seems quite normal. Mortimer's interaction with his nutty relatives eliminates any dull moments. "Arsenic and Old Lace either kept the audience in suspense or rolling in the isles. It was quite the experience for my first year on stage," noted Alex Ryser.

...Winter Play

Mortimer Brewster, played by Erik Steffens, discusses a script of an "up-and-coming" writer who happens to be on the police force. The confused Officer O'Hara was played by Alex Stevenson.

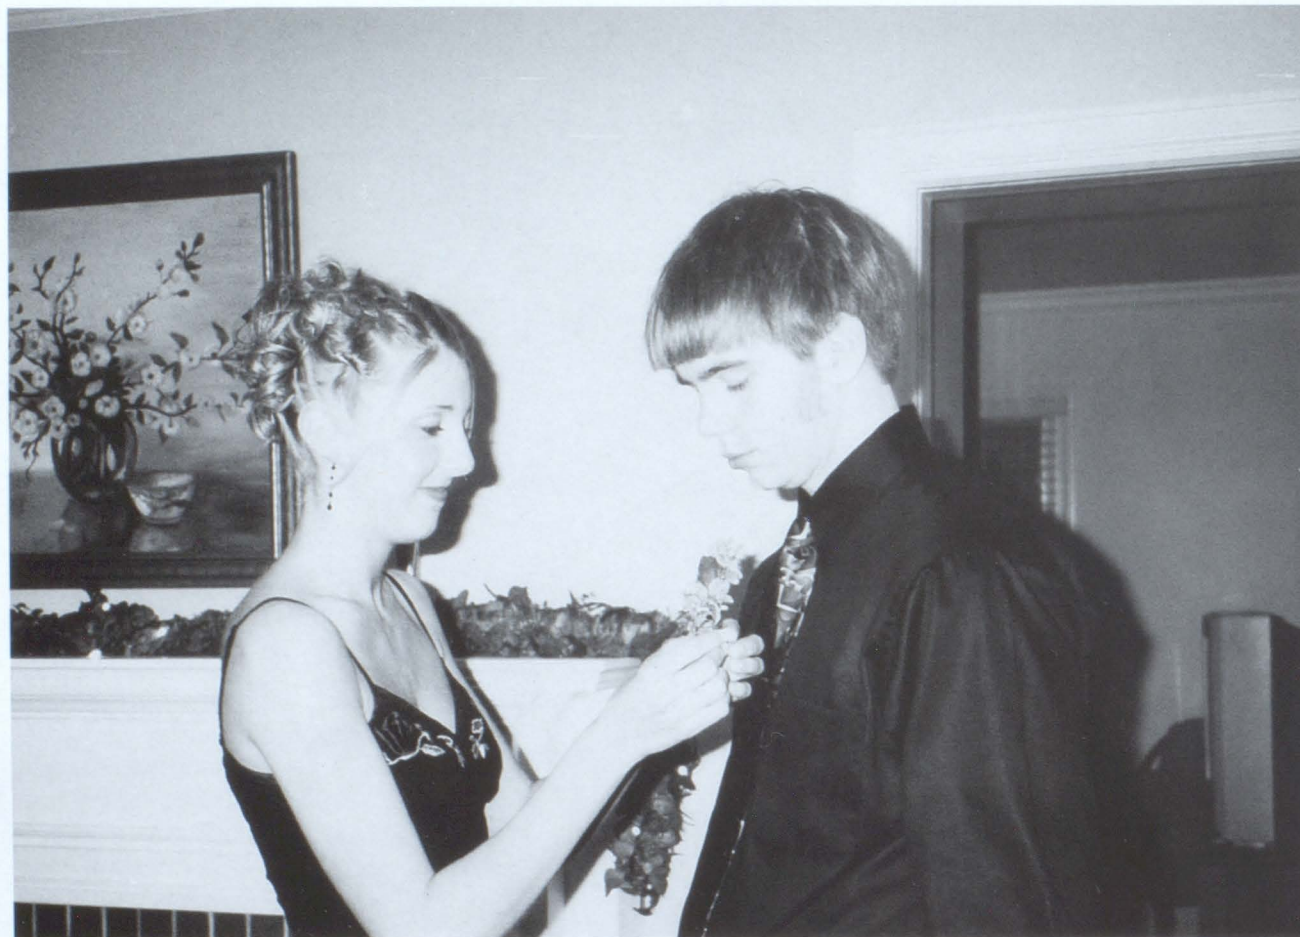

Mr. Gibbs, played by Craig McFarland prepares to drink a glass of wine from the "gracious" Abby and Martha Brewster. He is completely unaware of the poison in his glass of elderberry wine.

Kassy Caldwell as Aunt Abby Brewster has a nice lunch with her minister, played by Ben Graham. Little does he know what the seemingly sweet aunts have been up to.

The officers, played by Tim Schwaegler and Alex Vallejo, spend much of their night in the Brewster home. Ironically, they never learn of all the crazy events caused by this insane family.

Katherine Zerull and Kassy Kaldwell, who play Aunts Martha and Abby, try to persuade Craig McFarland, a man seeking to rent their extra room, to drink some of their famous wine.

The Director's Cut.....

Left: Concentrating as she tries to pin a flower to Matt Nimrick's shirt, Katherine Priggie is careful not to poke him. Exchanging flowers before a dance is a fun tradition that makes for a more special evening.

Below: Before heading to the River Center for Jingle Jam, Keeley Rosenthal, Tami Reed, Abby Meuser, and Sarah Tristan take time to pose for a quick picture. Although Jingle Jam is not a school-sponsored dance, many students attend and find it to be one of the most enjoyable dances of the year.

When dates and dinner reservations become the only topic of discussion, the MHS student body and faculty know a dance is just around the corner. For many students, the inevitable anticipation from these discussions leads up to one of the most exciting events of high school. Planning for dances can be very challenging. Guys (or girls during Sadies) devise clever ways to ask a date to the dance to insure they have someone special with whom they can share the night. Also, groups must be formed, dinner reservations must be made, flowers must be ordered, and outfits must be arranged. On the day of the dance, girls spend hours getting their hair done and beautifying themselves in preparation for the night, and groups make sure to take countless pictures while they are all spruced up. In addition, Student Congress works hard to choose a theme, hire a D.J., decorate the gym, and secure photo backdrops. Many teachers selflessly give up their Saturday nights in order to chaperone the dances. Whether it be at Homecoming, Sadies, Junior Prom, or Senior Prom, school dances provide special memories for students to cherish forever.

...School Dances

During the inevitable photo shoot before the Homecoming dance, Chris Banfield poses with his date, Emily Edwards, and prepares to drive to the restaurant for dinner.

Anxiously waiting for the picture-taking extravaganza to finish so they can eat dinner and begin dancing, Selena Rodts and Olivia Ellis relax for a few minutes.

Dances provide the perfect opportunity for friends to get together and share a fun evening of dancing. Showing off their new dresses, Stephanie Reagan and Jessica Chen wait for the evening to begin.

Relaxing after a long night at the dance and before a fun evening with friends, Doug Reiling and Lexie Payne remember how much fun their evening was.

Giving their feet a break after dancing for most of the night, Gabriella Hurtado and Whitney Mann find each other and snap a picture so they can remember their fun-filled evening.

The Director's Cut.....

Left: Entertaining the crowd at the Poetry Slam, Entourage members Sam McDermott on guitar and Darin Decker on vocals get a good response from the crowd. All bands involved in the slam did a tremendous job.

Below: Pausing at a particularly thought-provoking point of his poem, Mike Jensen prepares to continue his performance. Mike's complex and well-written poem, combined with his captivating recitation earned him first prize in the Poetry Slam.

Clubs and organizations found innovative ways to raise money in the 2003-2004 school year. The new advisor for Kaleidoscript, Joan Derouin, came up with a unique approach to fundraising for the MHS literary magazine along with Tim Curry and Tim O'Shaughnessy. The Band Jam Poetry Slam was a two-part event that featured student bands and poets. Poetry writers went through a preliminary round which reduced the number of poets from 30 down to 10. Ms. Susie Hafner, Mrs. Maggie Woods, Mr. Jim Taber, and Mrs. Jo Nusbaum judged the preliminary round, and Ms. Hafner, Mrs. Woods, Ryan Jones, and Chrissy Derouin were the judges at the Poetry Slam. Featured bands were The Entourage, The Movement, Goodbye Anabelle Lee, and Arc Find. After Arc Find dazzled the audience, the judges announced Mike Jensen as the first place winner. Autumn Bennet received 2nd place, and Katie Weigandt followed in third. Over 200 students were entertained by the 1st Annual Band Jam Poetry Slam. The overall success of the event promises to make the Band Jam Poetry Slam a favorite tradition for students and faculty for many years to come.

...Poetry Slam

Emotionally involved in her poem, Katie Weigandt pauses to express the true meaning of her reading. Katie greatly impressed the judges, resulting in a third place win.

Reading over their poems one final time before reading them, Autumn Bennett and Amber Dunn get psyched up before performing at the preliminary round of the slam, which was held in the library.

Getting into his music, Matt Cain entertains the crowd with his incredible guitar playing. While some students went to hear the poetry, others went to hear the many bands that performed at the event.

Performing his original work of poetry for judges and fellow students, Nate Klessig hopes they will understand and appreciate his words and thoughts.

Packed tightly in the East Gym, the crowd listens attentively to fellow slammers. The large turnout of both students and staff provided for a very successful evening.

The Director's Cut.....

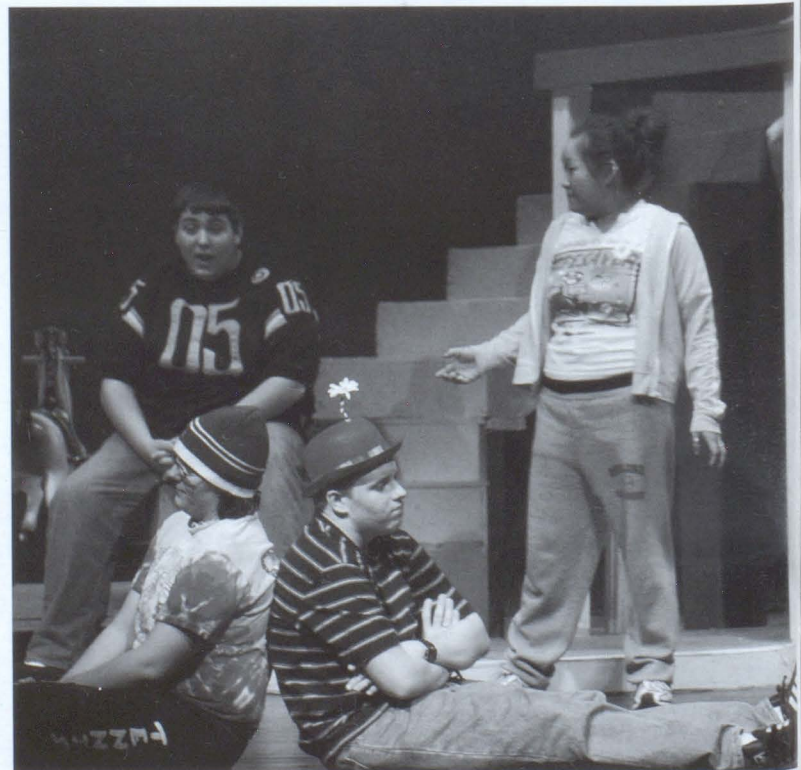

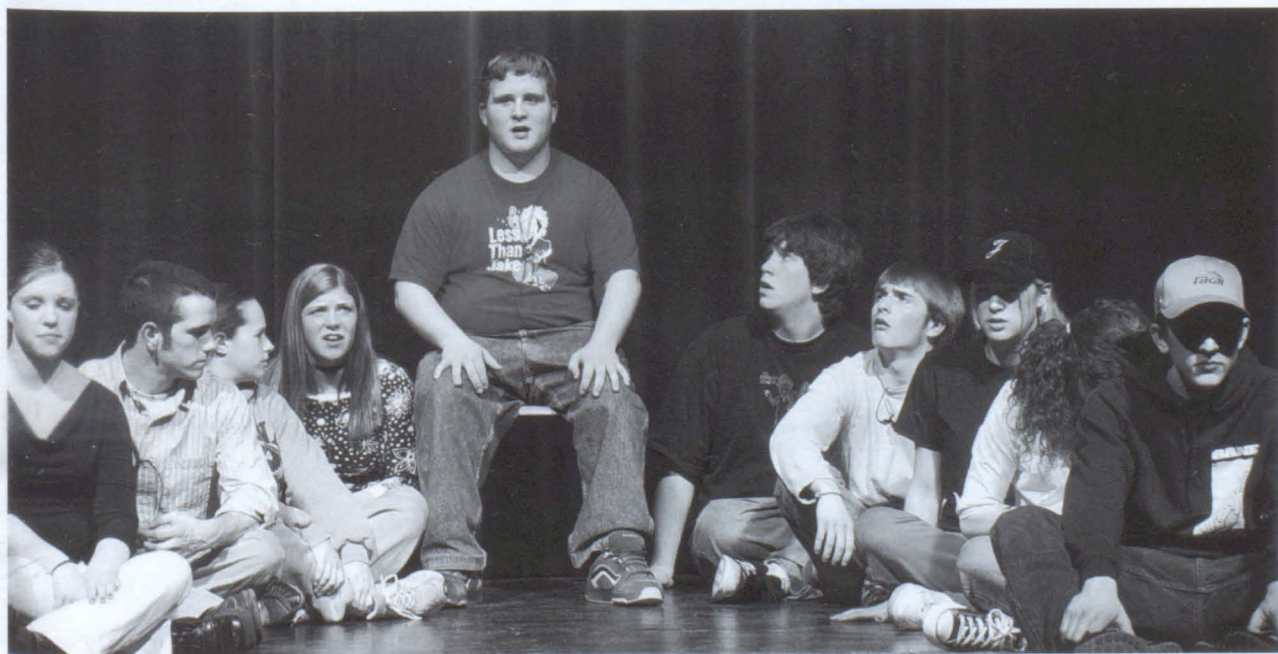

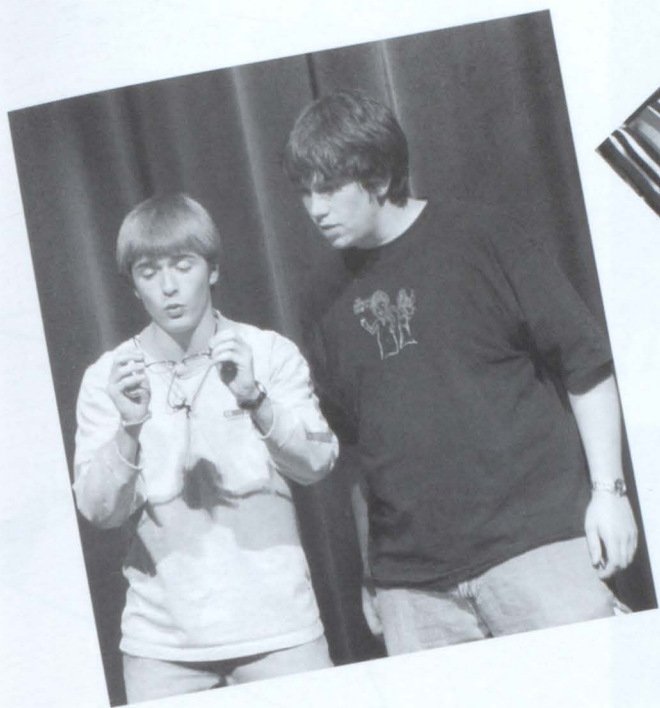

Left: Gathering together at Willy Wonka's Chocolate Factory, the five winners of the golden tickets, Veruca Salt (Alysa Grimes), Augustus Gloop (Scott Patton), Violet Beauregaurde (Lindsay Jackson), Charlie Bucket (Erik Steffens), and Mike Teavee (John Bollaert) get to know each other. All five children were unique and came with different attitudes about finding the ticket.

Below: Rehearsing a scene that takes place in the chocolate factory, Oompa Loompas Joseph Leebold, Molly Tallitsch, Victoria Swain, and Tom Teslik decide what to do about the visiting children.

Usually new directors at MHS have a hard time getting many students to try out for their first plays. However, when Ms. Jessica Burbridge decided to do Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, the new director had no problem getting students enthused about the production. Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, based on the novel of the same name by Roald Dahl, is a story most kids are familiar with. Willy Wonka, played by Craig McFarland, decides to open up his chocolate factory to five children who find "golden tickets" hidden in his famous chocolate bars. After Mike Teavee (John Bollaert), Augustus Gloop (Scott Patton), Veruca Salt (Alyssa Grimes), and Violet Beauregaurde (Lindsay Jackson) find the first four golden tickets, poor boy Charlie Bucket (Erik Steffens) saves up what little money he has, finds the last golden ticket, and takes his Grandpa Joe, played by Bryan Dressel, into the factory with him. Inside Willy Wonka's chocolate factory, all are amazed at the beauty and wonder of his factory, candy, and Oompa Loompas! Charlie and the Chocolate Factory proved to be an impressive start for the first year director.

...Spring Play

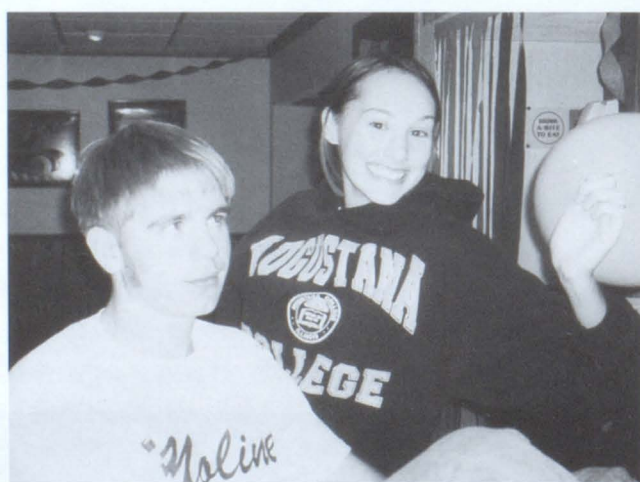

Mesmerized by the fact that he has received the fifth golden ticket, Charlie Bucket, played by Erik Steffens, shares the news with his Grandpa Joe, played by Bryan Dressel.

Observing the children's journey through the chocolate factory, Oompa Loompas Kiona Ervin, Rachel David, and Brittnei Roberts look on with interest and amusement.

Dancing through the chocolate factory, the Oompa Loompas entertain the children and their families while completing their work.

Filled with excitement over the opportunity to visit the chocolate factory, Mrs. Gloop (Sophie Poletto) waits with her son, Augustus, played by Scott Patton, for Willy Wonka to arrive.

Informing the children and their families about his factory, Willy Wonka, played by Craig McFarland, takes the group on a boat tour to acquaint them with their surroundings.

DOSIE DOE-IN'

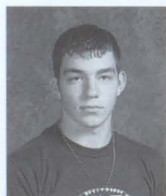

Getting down at Hoe Down, Courtney Puebla, Chris Schwarz, Paige Ortman, and Tony Gulley have a heck of a time with the sit line. Juniors also enjoy the other activities like line dancing and square dancing.

These Junior girls find time from line dancing to pose for a picture. Many Junior girls go all out with hats and piggytails when it comes to dressing up for the Hoe Down.

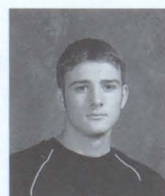

While riding around on "The Train," Stephanie Dockery and Amanda Walters enjoy their third year at the Hoe Down. Riding on the train is one activity everyone gets involved in.

IN THE ACTION

While at the sports rally, Allison Day, Danielle Adams, Lori Davies, Stephanie Reagan, Erin Smith, Becky Sandholm, Allison Hutchins, and Lindsay Jackson enjoy their time at the first event of the school year. Many Juniors participate in different sports, which shows school pride.

Swinging her racquet into action, Stephanie Jackson takes a powerful groundstroke at a high rising tennis ball. While participating in sports, Juniors enjoy the opportunity to be exempt from P.E. during the span of their season.

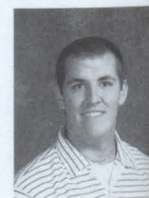

Running vigorously, Cross Country runners Jessica Chen and Erica Edens sprint to the finish line. Cross Country is one of the many sports Juniors love to participate in during the fall season.

CATCH US... AT FLOAT BUILDING

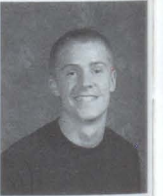

Working hard to complete the "desert" portion of the Junior float, Caitlin Eyth and Sarah Knox get to work by pumping. Pumping is the one thing that needs the most hands when it comes to completing the float.

Filling in the holes of the float's sides, Juniors Rosie Mesick and Jessica Gonzalez perfect the float. Juniors worked hard to complete the float and had a lot of fun in the process.

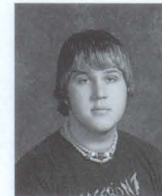

Concentrating intensely on finishing the side of the float, Allison Hutchins makes great use of her pumping skills. Many late nights and hours were spent by Juniors like Allison trying to complete the Junior class float.

IN HOLLYWOOD

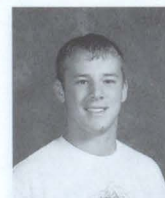

Getting ready to go to Homecoming, Ofelia Olvera pins a boutonniere on Alex Dalfonso. Juniors were surprised to see that the admission prices for couples was raised from $15 to $20.

CATCH US... OUT AND ABOUT

As Becca Leonard, Becky Sandholm, Stephanie Dunn, Jackie Grimes, Andrea Franzen, and Megan Helderman head out for a night on the town, they cruise down the Avenue under the stars. Juniors find ways to enjoy spending their nights around town.

Decked out in unique costumes, Amanda Walters, Megan Hoyt, and Stephanie Reagan are surprised with the amount of candy given to them on Halloween. Many Juniors spend their Halloween eating candy or dancing at parties.

CATCH US... LOVING AND CARING

Helping each other out, Kelsey Lovell and Katherine Priggie carry one of the many boxes of food to the loading truck. Many juniors spent their day contributing to the Student Hunger Drive.

Getting ready to score some touchdowns, Ashley Clement and Nina Ochoa sport the Junior's jerseys. The Powderpuff game is a great time to have fun and raise money for the Student Hunger Drive.

Top Left: Enjoying their time at Float Building, Kevin Olson, Breanne Buckdrop, Cory Wasilewski, Michael Woodin, and Keaton Schulte know how to have fun and work hard at the same time. To ensure that the float would be finished for the parade, many Juniors stayed there past midnight.

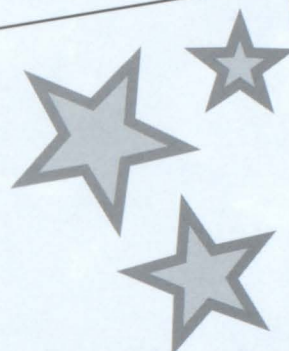

Top Right: Entertaining the football crowd, Ryan Sivertsen played the drums to get the crowd going. By playing the theme to "Spongebob Squarepants," the Marching Band had the crowd on their feet and yelling the lyrics from the popular animated series.

Sixteen... and feeding the hungry

Above: Taking a break from lifting boxes on Loading Day, these sophomores enjoy a sack lunch. Many sophomores enjoyed getting out of school to help with the Student Hunger Drive.

Below: Preparing to dominate the Powderpuff Tug of War, these members of the victorious sophomore team have their game faces on.

Acting out the lead parts in the popular Charlie's Angels skit, Michelle Funke, Christina Shelton, and Dawn Verstraete have a blast performing the trilogy of scenes. The faculty talent show provided teachers the opportunity to showcase their various talents in an effort to raise money for the Student Hunger Drive.

Singing his heart out, Dean of Students David Hodam proves to students that he can do more than hand out detentions for dress code violations. He was the lead singer and guitarist of a faculty cover band that closed out the talent show.

Right: Hammering down nails in Jewelry and Metals, Kenny Swanberg and Matt Senko focus on completing their projects. Jewelry and Metals produces a variety of things like rings.

Below: Brushing her paint brush against her artwork, Joanna Hagen paints a picture of herself reflecting her emotions. Art is not only skills, but also has to do with one's emotions and heart.

A Beautiful Mind

As many students walk through the first floor E-wing, they are exposed to many of the talented students' artwork displayed in the glass cases. Moline High School offers many art classes from Computer Art to Pottery and Sculpture I.

One of the most basic art classes is General Art, where basic art elements and principles are developed. From General Art, many take Draw, Paint, and Print-making I or Computer Art. In Draw, Paint, and Print-making I, students further develop their skills in those areas, with things such as acrylic painting. In Computer Art, students are exposed to the creation of computer generated images with fine art and commercial art emphasis.

AP Studio Art is an exceptional class for those students who have a true heart for art. Those students enrolled in AP Art learn to enhance their portfolio for scholarships, jobs, or self-gratification. The students will go beyond their chosen area of study in developing a diverse portfolio displaying knowledge, creativity, and abilities.

Other unique classes offered at MHS include Jewelry & Metals and Pottery & Sculpture I. Learning to pierce metal, form shapes by soldering parts together, and pound carving wax, many students take Jewelry and Metals class as seniors because it gives them something fun to do as their last year of high school.

"Art is about finding your passions in life and making them visual. It is a means of release."

—Stephanie Brosius, 11

Throughout Moline High School, there is a diverse number of talented art students. Moline High School provides these art students with one of the best art programs available in the Quad-City area.

Students realize that art has to come from the soul and express their innate feelings through their artwork. Anyone who has the passion for art should begin their journey through art class at Moline High School.

"My wonderful art teachers are one of my biggest influences on my artwork."
—Josh Holt, 12

"My artwork stems from the trials and tribulations in my life. Art allows me to convey my convictions and statements."
—Thomas J. Cornelis, 12

"The inspiration of expressing myself through art is my desire to make a statement to the world."
—Jessica Sheahan, 11

Joanna Hagen
12th grade

Right: While carefully sketching their drafts on paper, Stephanie Hunt, Monica Raya and Annelyse Gyenge give tips to each other during drafting class. Students take one of these interesting classes offered at MHS to perceive their goals.

A Beautiful Mind D-Wing

Walking down D-Wing may seem as a hard-core workout, but many students go down there everyday to explore the world of Industrial Technology. Although the IT Department and many budget cutbacks, the classes are still great and beneficial.

Each class in D-Wing, such as Machine Technology, deals with practical application, which includes academics and projects. In every class, students make many projects, like furniture, tools, or clamps.

In Wood Technology, students learn the basic concepts of manufacturing products of wood. This class covers basic information necessary to benefit the interests as well as the methods of manufacturing. In Woods 2 and 3, students further their knowledge in machine operations and furniture construction methods.

In Machine Technology, students learn the basic concepts of manufacturing products of metal. Students will have the opportunity to work with a lathe, milling machine, and drill press.

Many students also enroll in Car Care, which is only for juniors and seniors. This class includes information on buying car to fuel economy. Students have the opportunity to work on cars and learn what to do in case of a vehicle emergency.

“D-Wing classes are great because you learn to excell in skills that you normally wouldn’t get in a classroom setting.”

—Joey Horn, 12

In Mechanical Drawing, students learn many drafting techniques. They learn how to use drafting tools, geometric construction, and dimensions. In Mechanical Drawing 2 and 3, students deal with orthographic projection and pictorial drawings.

D-Wing classes are extremely beneficial when it comes to engineering, building trades, or manufacturing. Don’t hesitate to take a trip down to D-Wing; there are many interesting things to discover in that area of the school.

"D-Wing classes gives us an opportunity to get a hands-on experience, and express ourselves with what we like."

—Kevin Powell, 11

"It allows you to get a wider variety of skills and helps you see what you are good at doing."

—Alex Spurgetis, 11

"D-Wing classes are beneficial because colleges look for a well rounded students and these classes help a lot."

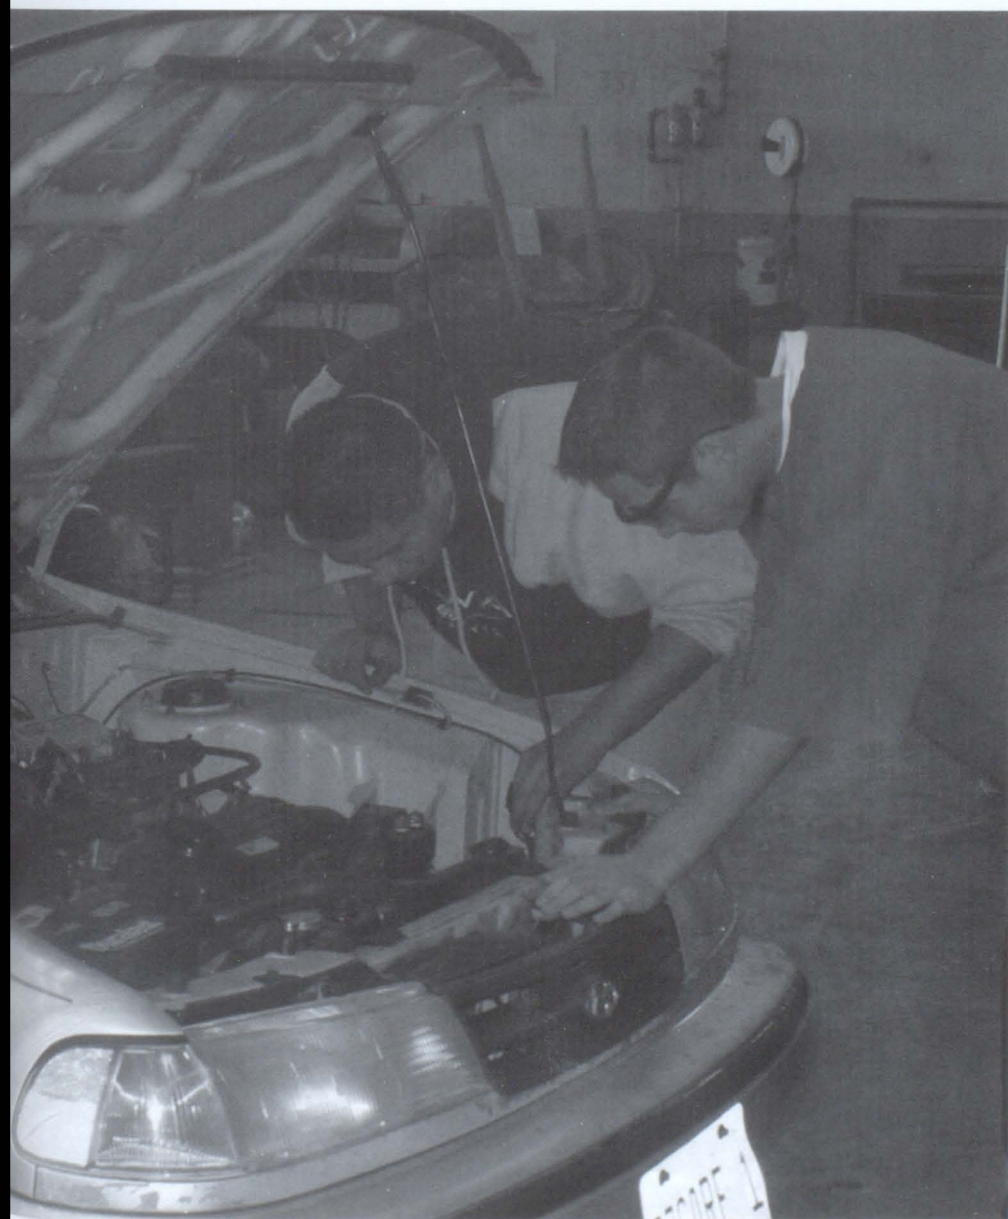

—Elizabeth Ziegler, 10

Why is it beneficial to take D-Wing classes with the other required classes?

Above: While concentrating intensely, Steven Douglass tries to drill a hole at an accurate point. The Drill Press is one of the many machines used by students in Machine Tech.

Left: Trying desperately to fix the problems on the car, Cesar Mendoza and Miguel Cruz spend each day experimenting with and repairing cars. Many students find that car care is very helpful in their future and they also enjoy being part of this class.

Lance Ferry
11th grade

Completing Woods 1,2, 3 and Machine Technology, Lance Ferry enjoys building new projects. He has built a cabinet and happer, and he never hesitates to start a new project. Lance believes that the skills he learned in these classes will help him pursue a career in carpentry.

Right: In an effort to help out the world, Courtney Hockaday, Karisa Ganahl and Stacey Edwards have a little fun while they gather paper from the different rooms. Every Wednesday the recycling class students pick up paper from class to class to contribute to the recycling project at MHS.

Below: After collecting the paper from the building, Keith Brown dumps the paper into the big recycle bins. These bins are located in D-199 and are later picked up by the recycling crew.

A Beautiful Mind RECYCLING

How much paper do you think Moline High School recycles every week? Let's just say, not enough.

Every Wednesday, during third period, ten students help out every week by going from room to room collecting the recycled paper. These students are enrolled in a recycling class, which originated about seven years ago.

This class was started by Mrs. Gail Thompson and Mrs. Kym Vandygriff, so that students would have the opportunity to have work experience. They also have the chance to learn how to follow instructions, be polite, and other basic manners and work skills that can be useful in receiving a community job.

Each floor has a small recycling crew with 2 to 3 students, making a total of 3 crews. Making their way around their assigned floors, these students travel to each classroom in the different wings around the school gathering all the recyclable paper produced by the school.

So how much paper is really recycled at MHS? These students save approximately two trees a week, which is equal to three bins. However, not even twenty percent of the paper is recycled.

"If you are not recycling, you are throwing it all away."

—Kym Vandygriff,
Recycling Coordinator

Another type of recycling they are involved in is pop can recycling, which started about thirteen years ago and is now coordinated by Mrs. Brenda Walker. Everyday during fifth period, these students take turns collecting the recycled pop cans by rotating between the seven students. The students involved with this pick up the cans from the twelve stations around the school everyday, wash them, and sort them. This task is an extremely time consuming job, but it needs to be done.

Both recycling projects earn a little bit of money each week, and with this money students are rewarded with field trips. Recycling helps to enrich the lives of MHS students and ensure that our community remains vibrant.

"It is a nice thing to recycle and more people need to recycle."

—Cortney Hockaday, 12

"It is good helping teachers out and is something to do for the school."

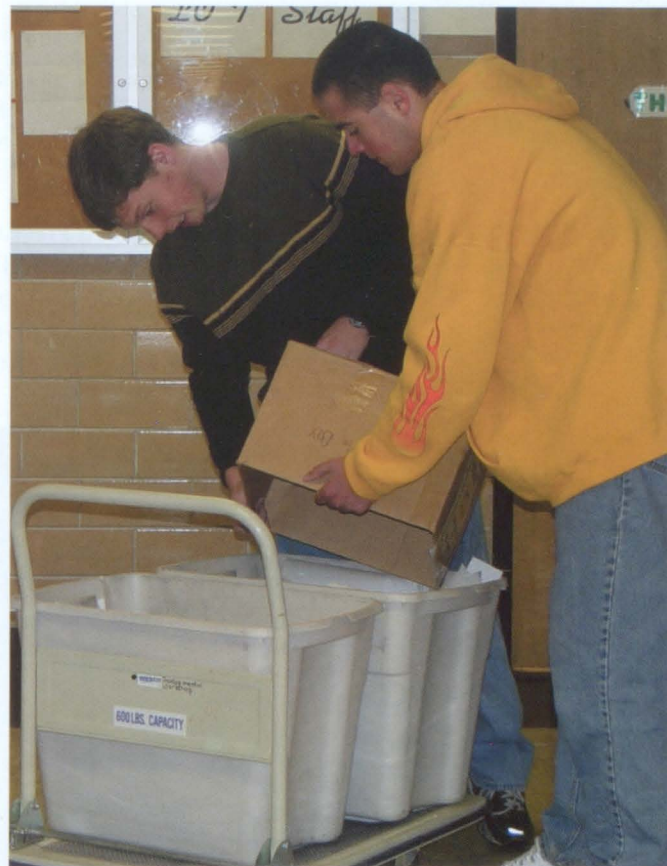

—Keith Brown, 11

"Recycling is a fun class. It helps out the world by doing it."

—Karissa Ganahl, 12

What are your personal thoughts on recycling at Moline High School?

Above: Transferring paper from a teacher's box to the correct bin, Matt Iman and Joseph Deschepper make sure not to spill any on the floor. These students make sure that paper is collected weekly by students and teachers in each classroom.

Left: By dumping out the remainder of pop in the cans and washing them, Gary Potter and Eric Sheldon help make it easier for the company to recycle the cans. Although this task is extremely time consuming, these students recycle pop cans daily.

In The Spotlight

Matt Iman
12th grade

Matt Iman is one of the many students who helps out by recycling paper for Moline High School. He hopes to attend college in Maryland. Displaying excellent leadership ability, Matt enjoys working with the others and mentions that more people should get involved.

Right: Getting a good night sleep is very important to Sophie Doroba and other test takers. To tackle standardized testing effectively, students should get at least an eight hour sleep.

Below: Every student knows that to get their brain juices flowing they need a balanced breakfast and Allison Anderson is on top of this task. By having a good breakfast before arriving at the test center helps students concentrate on their tests and not on their growling stomachs.

A Beautiful Mind Testing

Standardized testing is unfortunately an important part of a student's high school years. Every year a different test is administered to each class.

While Freshman do not have to worry too much about it, they have the opportunity to spend the half-day of Wednesday before Thanksgiving connecting random lines. Freshman take the CAPS COPS COPEs test, which is a career test. It is supposed to distinguish between one's abilities and interests to help explore different careers.

During one's sophomore year, students are to take the PLAN test, which is another form of the ACT. The PLAN tests is set up similar to the ACT and predicts how well one will score on the actual ACT.

As Junior year rolls around, Juniors begin taking the ACT or the SAT. While some students only take them once, there are several students that take them numerous times. The Wednesday before Thanksgiving break, Juniors are hit with a practice ACT. In the Spring, Juniors are lucky enough to be given the Prairie State Assessment Exam or PSAE, while all the other students have the day off. The PSAE is a state assessment exam that is used by the state to determine how well each school is doing academically.

"I think standardized testing is the greatest joke in American society. Four hours in a classroom is equivalent to four years of hard work?!"

—Mike Jensen, 11

Not only do Juniors have these tests to worry over, but they also have the PSAT. The PSAT or NMQST is similar the SAT and determines if a student is eligible to be a National Merit Scholar.

Many Seniors may retake the ACT or SAT to improve their scores, otherwise seniors are given the chance to be free of standardized testing.

Many people still wonder if these tests amount to anything, but for now they will stay and threaten students.

"I think standardized testing can give a good general idea of academic standing, but there are a lot of things it does not take into account."

—Adam Hendricks, 11

"No, I do not feel that it accurately measures academic standing because one test cannot possibly measure one's intelligence."

—Kiona Ervin, 10

"I think standardized testing isn't always an accurate measure of academic standing because I always feel rushed so I don't do as well as I can."

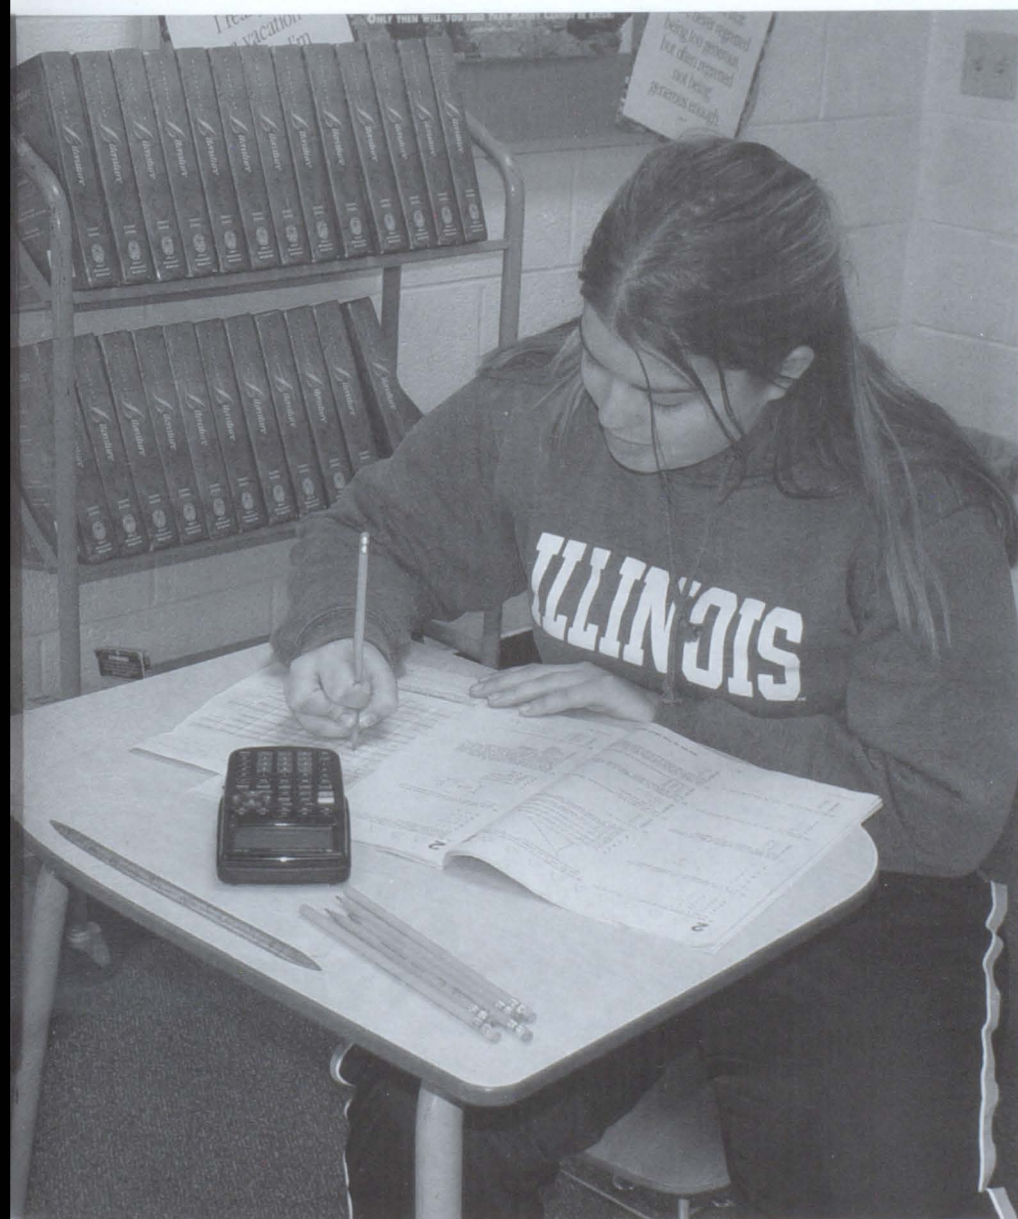

—Kim Spitzfaden, 9

Do you think standardized testing accurately measures academic standing?

Above: Before taking their standardized test many students like Trisha Patel pour over numerous books to get as much practice as they can. Students use a variety of sources to prepare for these tests from books to the internet.

Left: After spending hours studying, Sarah Knox plans to do well on her ACT. Many students feel that by practicing their test taking skills they can excel and receive better scores on these tests.

Kate Ortman

Kate Ortman is one of the three valedictorians at MHS this year.

She has excelled in school, sports and her testing abilities. Kate acknowledges that testing is a very good idea to help colleges get a perspective of each student. She plans to go to the Naval Academy and major in some type of engineering.

Right: Squeezing in some last minute homework before school is the key to success for Jay Kokshin and Brad Reed. Many students are found adding final touches to homework before they begin their school day.

A Beautiful Mind Studying

Whether it is studying for French I or AP Calculus, there always comes a point in a student's life where he or she has to hit the books. As the years go by, students develop their own sense of style when it comes to studying.

In the early hours of the morning, before the 8:05 AM bell rings, many students huddle around in the hallways and finish some last minute homework. This habit is displayed by the majority of the students at Moline High School.

John Holmes says that he has "to be plugged in to study. If I surround myself with distractions, I am forced to make an effort to focus."

Since many students are intensely involved in extracurricular activities, one of their habits consist of staying up late to prepare for upcoming tests. Other students form study groups and absorb the material better with other students.

Not only do students spend their mornings studying, but some have late night online study sessions for certain AP courses. These online study groups consist of many students studying online and discussing the material for their class.

"I have to be plugged in to study. If I surround myself with distractions, I am forced to make an effort to focus."

—John Holmes, 11

After studying for long hours, many students become very tired and begin drinking large amounts of coffee to stay awake. Many other students use other sources of caffeine like pop.

Although plagerizing other students' work is also a big study habit, Cliffs Notes have become a useful tool for many English students. Cliffs Notes and other useful study aides, like Spark Notes, have become a part of many students' study patterns.

Studying is a very important during one's journey through high school, so students need to have an early grasp on study habits to help them in the long run. Having these effective study habits will always be beneficial to students to achieve better grades.

"I listen to music with a funky beat to get my thinking juices flowing."

—Scott Griffith, 11

"The most effective way to study is cramming it all in the period before."

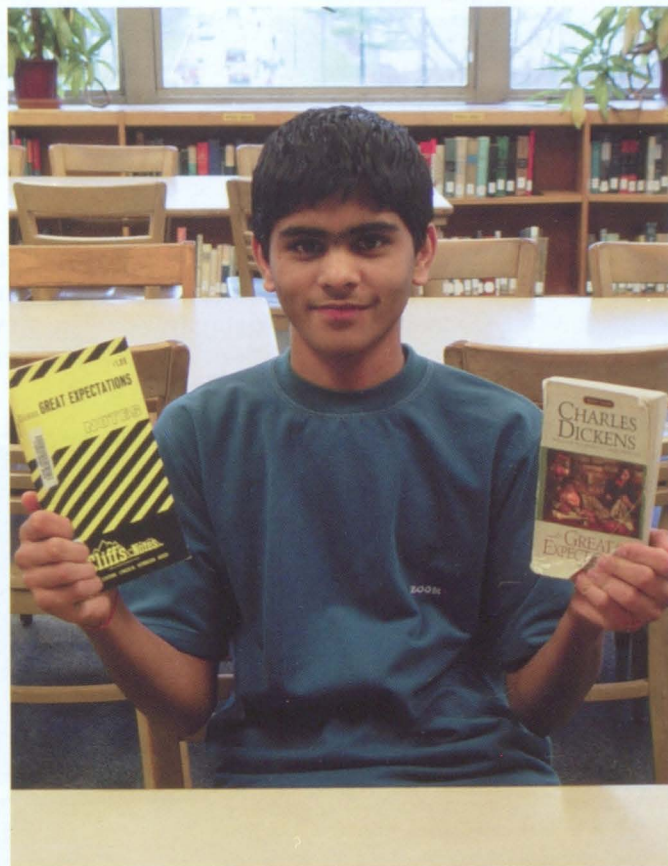

—John Bracke, 10

"I put my nose to the grindstone and chip away."

Maintaining a 4.0 GPA., Karen Spitzfaden was recognized as a National Merit Scholarship Commended student. Being Editor-in-Chief of the yearbook and the newspaper, Karen must budget her time carefully and participate in late-night online study groups to prepare for tests in difficult classes.

Right: While trying to make Physics II more interesting for students, Mrs. Fitzpatrick makes use of the new electric classroom in room E301. The technology updates done at MHS gives each student a better opportunity to learn at this high school.

Below: Helping his students learn in the newly improved science classroom, Mr. Joel Bohnsack explains the Law of Conservation of Momentum. The new electronic classrooms help students get a visual perspective of their lessons.

A Beautiful Mind Technology

During the first whole nine weeks, majority of the computers were not working, which caused frustration in teachers and students. Teachers were unable to access grades or old documents. Students could not access any old documents and could not get on any computers during one week.

Many of the computer problems were due to the fact that the school was trying to combine the PC and Mac servers into one server. If this would have worked, then students or teachers could have accessed any of their documents whether they were on a PC or Mac.

Although the combined servers were working, there were many things that needed to be fixed and the job was not completely finished. As a result, the servers were split back up; so the PC and MAC were once again on different servers.

Since the servers were running out of space, one more server was added to the PC side. In addition, five labs were upgraded with new mini hubs and much of the wiring was moved around. In the Grape Lab, the furniture was reorganized, giving the lab a new structure.

Many of the science labs were also upgraded. It has been a long time since the science department has had any advancement in technology. The last time it was changed was when the school was first built.

"The technology in this school is really catching up to the standards of today."

—Doug Reiling, 12

Over the years, computer usage has increased drastically. As a result, the "electronic classrooms," like E301, have many electronic devices that aid teachers when teaching a lesson. The new rooms are now equipped with a computer projection screen, a DVD and audio player, and an ELMO.

Through all the computer crashes, MHS got through a tough year. Within the next year, the ultimate goal in the technology department is to once again put both servers back together permanently.

"Technology enhances our education by allowing us to access the internet to do research and other projects. We can also use technology to do artwork."

—Matt Mueeting, 12

"Technology puts a wealth of information at the tips of our finger."

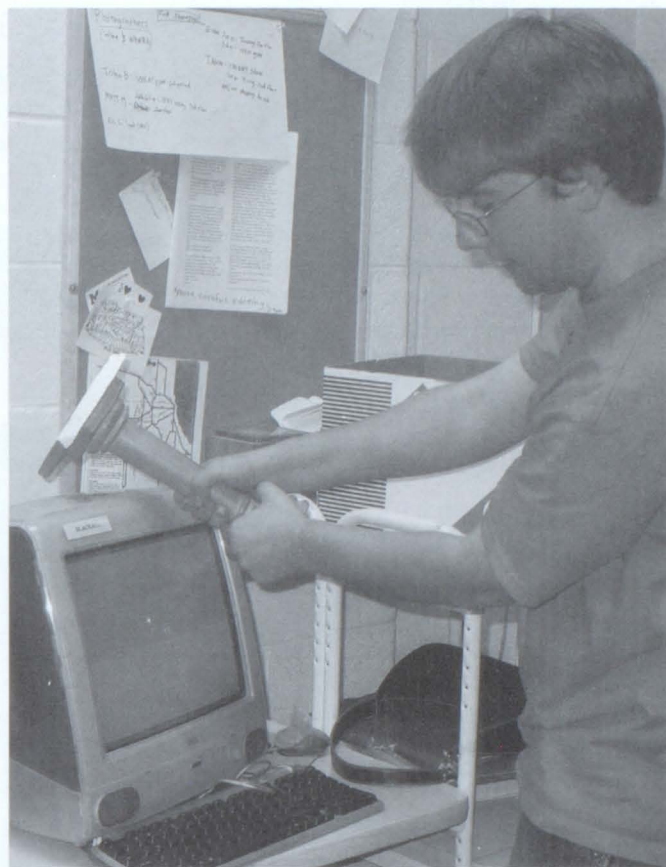

—Anna Greene, 11

"I could not live without technology in my education. I certainly use the internet all the time, and thank goodness for the TI - 83 calculators."

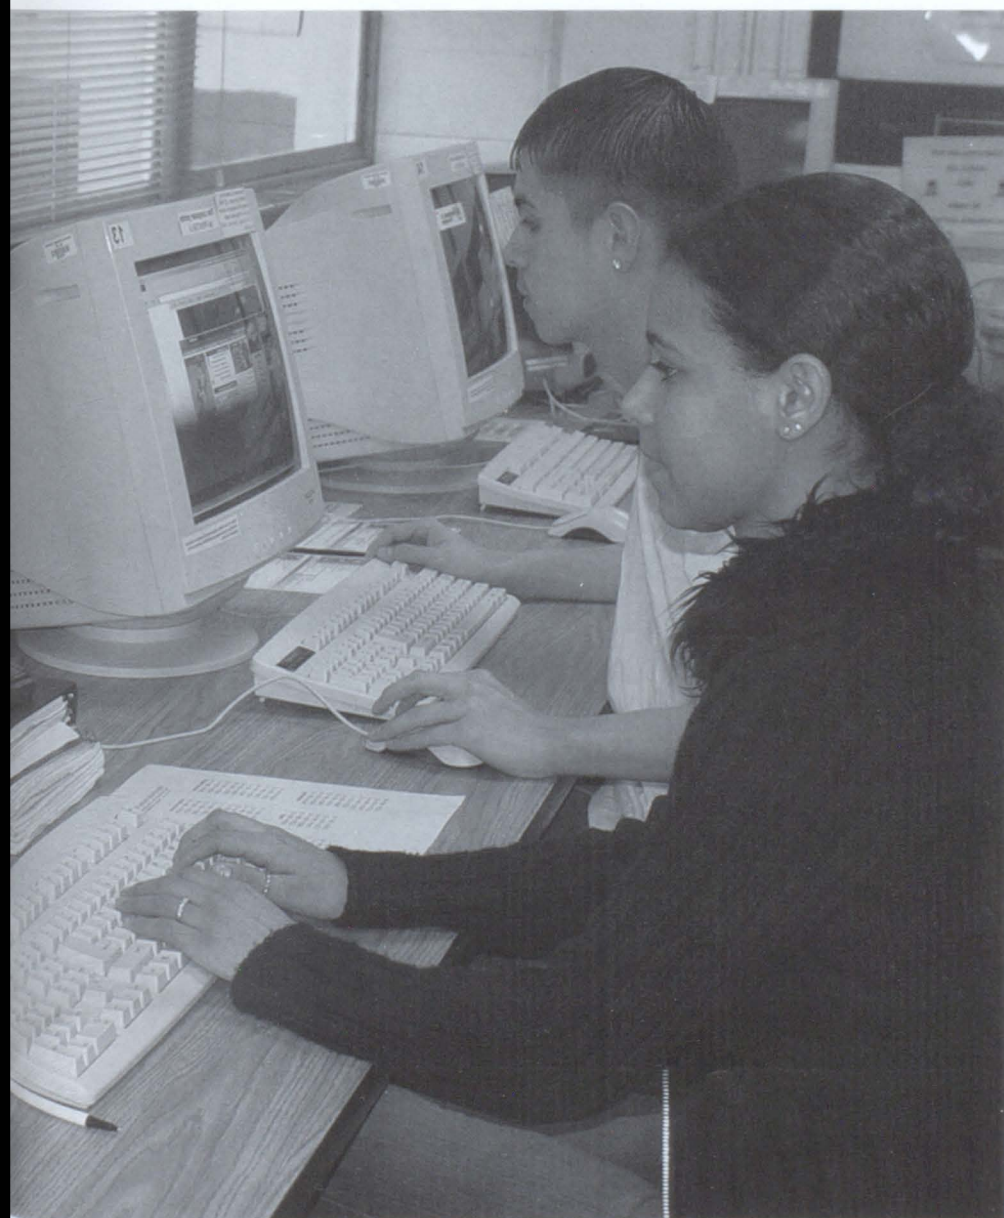

—Tom Teslik, 10

How does technology enhance your education at MHS?

Above: Aggravated with the computers at MHS, Cameron Bruhn takes out his frustration on one of the computers in the Publications Office. Due to the many upgrades made this year, MHS has faced a lot of problems with the servers.

Mr. Jay Bohnsack
Computer Support Specialist

Mr. Bohnsack, the Computer Support Specialist at MHS, is the one to call, when one needs computer help. He states, "In the past four years the school has had $200,000 in computer technology. About 220 computers have been added for student and teacher use, which helps enhance a student's education."

Below: Working intensely on their debate, Aaron Lopez and Nate Nott write their scripts in order to perform their speeches. Some students have the opportunity to write their own speeches in certain areas of the speech team.

A Beautiful Mind Speech & Debate

As the moment of giving a speech approaches, many of us can hear the throbbing of our hearts and the feeling of nervousness running along our bodies. Giving a speech is a task loathed by many students, but the participants in the first Speech and Debate Team take a different view of speaking in front of an audience.

For numerous years in MHS, no one has had the excellent idea of starting a Speech and Debate Team. However, Ms. Jessica Burbridge decided to take on the challenge of starting and coaching this new team. She stated that she likes to “give the students the opportunity to realize how they could excel in something they never thought they could be able to do.”

The team consists of forty students and eight coaches. Students from all different grades took pride in the opportunity to participate in this new club.

The Speech team and the Debate team are two separate sections. The Speech team consists of three different types of speeches, and the students can choose which speeches they will perform. They are public speaking, interpretation and acting; however, these three groups are then split up further into thirteen different events.

Likewise, the Debate team is also divided into three different types of debating. These three divisions are the Lincoln-Douglass, Policy, and Congressional. They relate to current world issues. This year this new club decided to participate in seven speech tournaments and at least three debate tournaments.

“I wanted to give the students the opportunity to realize how they could excel in something they never thought they could be able to do.”

—Ms. Jessica Burbridge,
Speech and Debate coach

The Speech and Debate Team has been an extraordinary addition to Moline High School. Many students are thrilled that it is now part of MHS traditions and will be for years to come.

"It is wicked cool, and it improves my speaking skills."

—Bryan Dressel, 12

"Speech and Debate is totally radical in a far out way and I get to learn new skills."

—Scott Patton, 12

"I think the Speech and Debate Team is great. It teaches you a lot about speaking in front of crowds and is a great experience."

—Paige Ortman, 11

What are your thoughts about the addition of the Speech and Debate team to MHS?

Below: As Mr. Pitz reads off the question, Grant Eyth, Jake VanDamm, Sarah Davenport and Jason DeVrieze try to answer the question as soon as possible. Coaches of the team believe that the best way to get ready for tournaments is by practicing mock tournaments at each meeting.

A Beautiful Mind Academic Team

What is the architectural style which dominated the second half of the thirteenth century and was associated with the royal Paris court of Saint Louis? Don't know the answer to this question? Many members of the Academic Team can proudly say the answer is the Rayonnet Style.

Restarted in 1992, the Academic Team, originally known as the Scholastic Bowl, is coached by Mr. Nicholas Pitz. While Mr. Pitz coaches the Varsity team, Mr. Curtis Butterfield coaches the Freshman and Sophomore team.

There are ten to fifteen students on each team. Each year they play 14 to 18 tournaments during the core months of December to February. The Illinois High School Association state tournament is held in March, and this year it was held in Peoria on March 20.

The students answer the questions in a jeopardy style with five players on a team. Each team consists of an expert on each category, such as social studies, literature, math, and science.

Each scholastic bowl match has twenty toss-up questions worth ten points each. Following the toss-up questions are the bonus questions worth twenty points. The bonus points usually come in four parts that are five points each.

"The Academic Team has been a great experience that has tested our team's memory and reflexes, while giving us a chance to show off our knowledge.

—Jason DeVrieze, 12

In the past six years, MHS's Academic Team has made six straight state tournaments, which is a great accomplishment. They placed first in 1999 and third in 2001.

This year the Varsity captain was Haroon Hussain and the Fresh/Soph captain was John Bracke. Some outstanding seniors include Jason DeVrieze, Grant Eyth, Kyle Russel, and Ken Suzuki. The Academic Team has always been a great part of MHS and will continue to be.

"Academic Team is great because it is a place to learn and have fun all at once. You get to meet and compete against other students of your talents."

—Srikanth Yerra, 11

"Academic Team helps me expand my knowledge and meet new people."

—Christine Hoegner, 10

"I enjoy answering the questions and being under Mr. Butterfield's direction."

—John Davenport, 9

What is the best part of Academic Team?

Above: Thinking intensely and accurately has been the key to answering questions to Samantha Borkgren, John Bracke and Tonya Atherton. The students' goal in all tournaments is to answer questions quickly and correctly.

Left: As they listen to the question, Stephen Grimes, John Scott, Shawn McNalley, and Jason Doh, try to make use of their quick reflexes to respond to the question. Students have practice once a week for at least an hour and have the opportunity to travel to tournaments over the weekend.

Of the three languages offered at Moline High School, each one has established its own club. With over 150 members, French Club organizes many activities from progressive dinners to sledding parties. Spanish Club does a great job of upholding the Spanish culture by making pinatas and eating at Mexican restaurants. The German Club meets occassionally throughout the year to enjoy fun meetings with lots of food. Latinos Unidos gathers the latinos of MHS and they enjoy fun-filled activities with some of their closest friends. These clubs try to emphasize the cultures around the world and help students follow new horizons.

Many organizations at MHS show great qualities of Leadership. The Student Congress organizes student dances and coordinated a blood drive. Recognizing students who have excelled in their schoolwork and maintained a good G.P.A. throughout their freshman and sophomore years in school, National Honor Society puts together a great Share Joys and a Variety Show. Key Club is involved in many activities throughout the year. The Student Hunger Drive was the main event for Key Club. GATHERING AROUND THE GOOD STUFF

At MHS, there is a club for every individual. The Science Club hosts numerous activities, such as the Fondue Party, hiking trips, and a Chicago Field Trip. Members of Upward Bound have the opportunity to visit colleges and take summer trips, like New York City. Another organization in MHS is the Authentic Voices. For students involved in MHS music programs, a lot of hard work and dedication is required. In the fall, band members devote most of their time to marching band, while orchestra students prepare for upcoming concerts. The bands and orchestras perform many concerts throughout the year, and individuals perform at Solo and Ensemble Contest in the spring. Some band students also participate in jazz band and in pep band during basketball season. This year, twenty-two MHS musicians qualified for the All-State music festival, and of all Illinois high schools, MHS had the largest number of participants.

Moline High School's Choir has an excellent reputation and is one of the best choirs in the state of Illinois. The choirs have performed exceedingly well this year in a variety of community programs. Chamber Choir, which is a group of highly talented singers, has especially done a great job of giving back to the community through their excellent performances.

As a Quincy player tries his best to keep up, Kevin Ryan scrambles down the field. Although only a junior, Kevin was a strong team leader and quarterback.

Above: Running off the field after warming up, the Maroons prepare themselves for the game. In order to avoid injuries, warming up is essential.

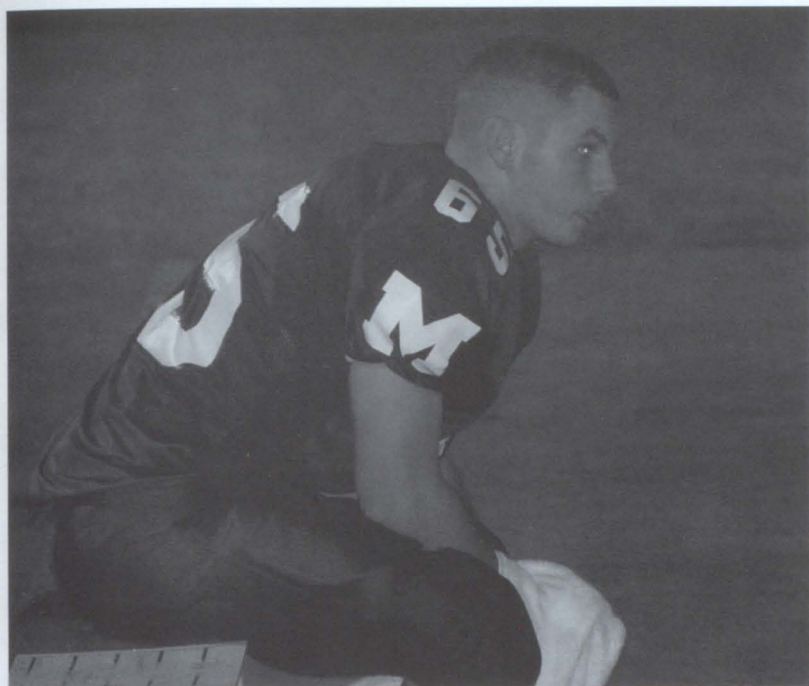

Right: Intently focused on his ultimate goal of victory, senior Kyle Coverdill keeps his focus on the game.

Right: Lining up on the line of scrimmage, the MHS offense prepares to execute a play. Team communication and preparation were especially important aspects of the team's success.

Left: Running for a touchdown, senior Lars Moen leads the Maroons toward the endzone. Lars came back from an injury to be a main force on the team.

Taking a well-deserved break, Nick Schroder watches the defensive team do their part. Nick was a captain and, as center, the leader of the offensive line.

Football Team Fights Back

Every football team has its traditions, and the MHS football team is no different. One "tradition" for the Moline football team that has evolved the last couple of years is the "tradition" of losing the first two or three games, and then fighting back during the second half of the season. Last year's team started 0 and 3, but they fought back to finish the season as co-Western Big Six Champs. Knowing this, there was not much worrying when the football team started 0 and 2 this season. The Maroons played the defending state champs, Lockport, and Brother Rice, a state-ranked team, for the first two games of the season. Although the team played hard and gained motivation for the rest of the season, they came up short. Hungry for a win, the football team traveled to Pekin and tallied their first victory. The Maroons then sailed on to win another victory against Galesburg. Some key players in these victories were Kevin Ryan, Matt Wismer, Aaron Cook, Alec Lance, Alvin Carbajal, and Josiah Lorentzen.

Following through with his stroke, Eric Barnett spots the ball as it enters the fairway. Eric was the top player for the boys' team, and he made the All-Metro Team.

Above: Striving for excellence, Marisa Behrends lines up for her next shot by evaluating the course. As a senior with four years of experience, Marisa was one of the team's leaders.

Right: Upon completing his drive, Andrew Sadler follows his shot down the fairway. Andrew consistently achieved low scores throughout the season.

Right: Watching his putt intently, Nick Sharp hopes the ball will drop into the hole. As a junior, Nick was number two on the boys' team and was known for his consistency.

Left: Using her experience, Stephanie Hunt keeps her head down and finishes her putt. A high point of Stephanie's season was her hole in one at Golfmohr.

Just before beginning the Western Big Six meet, Katie Herr prepares for the task ahead. Katie was the number one player on the girls' team, and she proved to be their most valuable player.

Moline Golfers Swing Far Away

Even though they lost two graduating seniors last season, the girls' golf team had no trouble swinging away the competition. Going into conference the girls' only competition was the Silver Streaks of Galesburg. In an upset, Galesburg just barely topped Moline by four strokes. Varsity golfer Amie VanDeRostyne said, "We were evenly matched with Galesburg, and they were our only competition in the Western Big 6. Conference was a pretty good meet, and even though we didn't take it, I think Moline still did all right." Earning conference honors were Marisa Behrends, Katie Herr, and Morgan Joseph. The boys' team also swung away the competition. They placed third as a team in the WB6 Conference, with the Maroon's Eric Barnet placing second individually. Eric also qualified individually for sectionals, which the team missed qualifying for by three strokes. Overall, it was a great season. The Varsity team finished with a record of nine wins and nine losses, and the JV team finished undefeated with six wins.

Diving for the ball, Mary Millman digs it up! Mary was one of the team's three captains and was a great left-side all-around player.

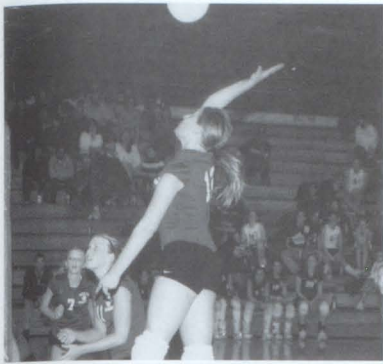

Above: Serving it up, Stephanie Nitz serves her specialty floater. Though Stephanie was a only a junior, she was a vital member of the team and a Pacesetter.

Right: Spiking it down, Maggie Amundsen goes for the kill. Maggie was named the Player of the Year by The Dispatch.

Right: Attempting to block the ball, the volleyball girls press to the six zone. Moline's volleyball team had a very strong and effective front row.

Left: Leaping for the ball, Nikki Hansen spikes the ball over the net. Nikki was one of the captains, and she was a motivational leader on the court.

Coming together before the start of the game, the maroons pump each other up. Before the beginning of each game, the girls yelled, "HOORAH!"

Netters End Season in Heartbreak

Having only four seniors and one returning starter, critics of the Moline volleyball team had many doubts for the season. "We seniors had to prove a lot, and we came out strong," said captain Maggie Amundsen. The volleyball team ended its season with a record of 28-8. These lady maroons also stepped up to many of their personal and team goals. They won the Clinton Invitational, beating Central in the finals, which hasn't been done since 1985. These netters also won the Western Big Six by dominating Quincy for the title, beating them 20 to 25, 25 to 20, and 25 to 18. Going into the post-season playoffs, the Maroons were ranked second in their sectional. Moline's biggest road block on their road to state was Geneseo. Although Moline beat Geneseo earlier in the season, they came back for revenge. "We played our hardest, but their defense was just on," said outside hitter and captain Nikki Hansen. In the end, the team came up short and lost 30 to 32 and 21 to 25. "We had a great season, and I'm going to miss playing with these girls," stated junior Stephanie Nitz.

As Chrissy Derouin returns a high forehand, her doubles partner, Brooke Forsberg, intently watches their opponents. The duo's teamwork allowed them to place second in the doubles' competition at State.

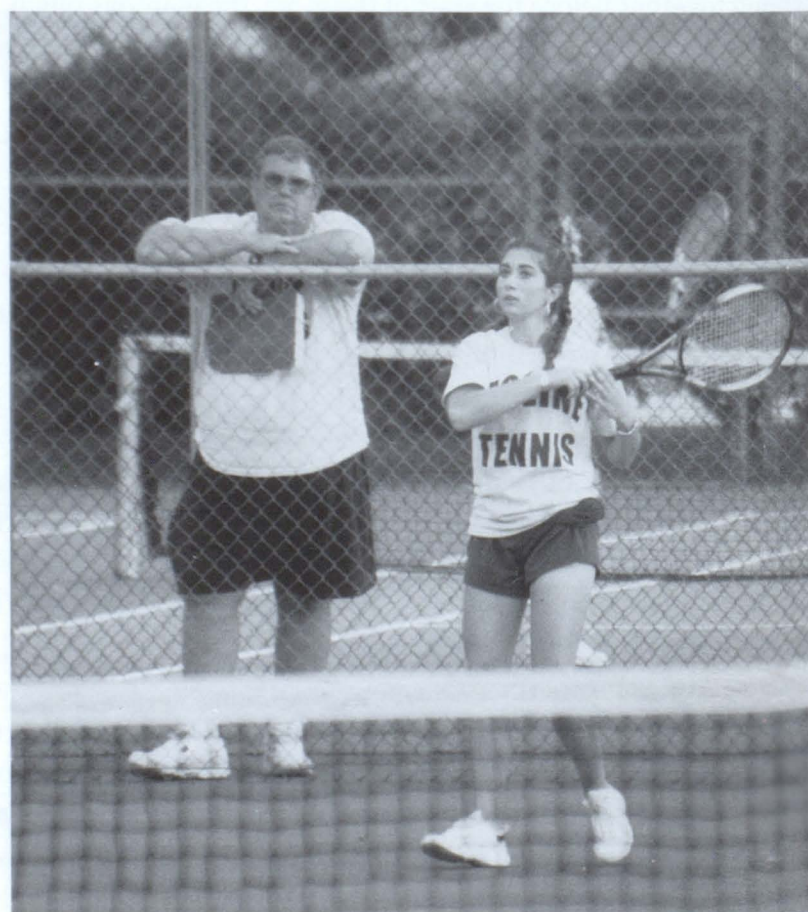

Above: Just after releasing the ball, Chrissy Derouin is ready to ace her serve and win the point. As varsity team captain, Chrissy exhibited great form and leadership.

Right: Keeping her feet in motion, Emily Griffin is prepared to return her opponent's best shot. In both practices and games, Emily was one of the hardest workers and always maintained a positive attitude.

Right: Displaying perfect form, Allison Day returns a strong forehand while Mr. Johnson, the Junior Varsity coach, looks on. Mr. Johnson was a favorite of every girl on the team, and he was always there to lend his support.

Left: Utilizing her powerful backhand, Patty Bloom strategically returns the ball to her opponent. Though only a sophomore, Patty occupied the fifth spot on the tennis team and was one of the six girls to qualify for State.

After winning Sectionals, the top six players take a long-awaited break. This year's team was friends on and off the court.

Tennis Team Aces to a Victory

What's love got to do with it? For this year's tennis team there are a variety of answers to this question, since it was the motto on the team's t-shirts. Sophomore standout, Brooke Forsberg describes the love on the team as, "It's love like a family. After all, we spend more time with each other than with our own families." The team traveled to Chicago almost every weekend in search for competition, and those trips provided a lot of bonding time for the girls. At these competitions, Moline's opponents quickly began to know the tennis definition of love—zero points. The team was undefeated in conference and early in the season, they swept their first three invitationals. At the New Trier Invitational, also known as "little state," the team finished eighth out of sixteen teams. The girls finished their season with a strong win at Sectionals and a high placing at State. Chrissy Derouin and Brooke Forsberg placed second in doubles at State. Also qualifying for State were Allison Day, Erin Smith, Patty Bloom, and Angie Panicucci.

With no opposition in sight, John Bollaert makes a break for the goal. John displayed great leadership this year as a senior and as a captain.

Above: After making an important save, Goalie Kevin Romero prepares to boot the ball down the field. Kevin made numerous saves throughout the season as the team's starting goalie.

Right: Mapping out his actions as he approaches the ball, Nathan Sanchez dribbles down the field. As a sophomore, Nathan was a valuable asset to the varsity team, and he was given an honorable mention for the All-Metro Team.

Right: Showing off some fancy footwork, Michael Nelson moves the ball down the field with flair. Michael contributed to the seventeen shut-outs the team had, and he was named to the All-Metro Team.

Left: Looking up the field, Dan Siltman decides where to place the ball. As a team captain, Dan was named the Player of the Year by The Dispatch.

After receiving a pass from a teammate, Joey Fredericksen sends the ball back down the field. As a forward, Joey was a key offensive player for the team.

Boys' Soccer Team Kickin' It

Moline boys' soccer kicked off to an awesome start with a 4-0 conference record. The boys then continued running, practicing, and shooting non-stop in order to accomplish a major feat. The team won Sectionals for the first time in fifteen years and qualified for State. The dream became a reality when the team made their way to the top eight. The Maroons were then matched up against the number-one-ranked team, the Neuqua Valley Wildcats. During the first half, the clock ran out before the Maroons were able to score. "If only we had had one more minute, we could have scored," said senior John Bollaert. The Maroons continued to fight throughout the second half, but the game ended with the Wildcats winning 3 to 0. Despite their final loss, the soccer team had a very successful season. They won the Conference for the second year in a row, and they were regional and sectional champions. Their final record for the season was 24-3-1. Both Dan Siltman and Luis Ojeda were named Players of the Year by The Dispatch.

Exhausted, but enthused, senior Mike Verre keeps even with his Alleman competitor. Mike's hard work paid off with a third-place finish at Conference and a second-place finish at Regionals.

Above: Winning Conference with a time of 15:18, senior Erik Steffens crosses the finish line. Conference was Erik's first race back after his stress fracture.

Right: Pacing herself, Hannah Swanson focuses on the long race ahead. Hannah improved greatly from last season to become a strong team leader.

Right: Nearing the finish line, Brittany Minor tries to pull ahead of the competition. Brittany's work in the off season contributed to her second-place finish at Western Big Six.

Left: Showing no sign of defeat, senior Erin Duquette is determined to clock in at her best time. Erin's consistency throughout the season helped the team.

Leading the race, junior Alex Hutchins speeds towards the finishline. Alex was the team's highest finisher at State.

Cross Country Team Strides Out in Front

Rain, heat, and cold were just minor obstacles to the Moline boys' and girls' cross country teams. Injuries, however, hurt both teams in their race towards State. Both Ashley Hartson and Lauren DePaepe were injured this season, as well as the boys' captain, Erik Steffens. Erik's performance at Sectionals motivated the team in their drive toward State. "Inexperience was our greatest setback this year, after losing four out of five of our top runners," said girls' co-captain Erin Duquette. Though the girls did not make it to State, this re-building year should position them for a head start on next season. "We also gained seven girls who had never ran varsity, so the whole team really worked together to teach them everything," said Erin. The boys had no problems with experience; five of their top runners returned. Boys' captain Erik Steffens was most proud of the team's victory over Quincy in Conference. "Since we lost to them last year, winning was like payback," he said. The boys' team finished 25th at State. Both teams put in countless hours and miles of running. Next year both teams will definately be ready to run.

Swimming freestyle to the finish, Craig Frederiksen gets one stroke closer to the end. Craig was a vital member of the boys' swim team and was named a Pacesetter by The Dispatch.

Above: Gasping for air, Angie Whitney powers through her 100-yard freestyle race. Angie competed at the Conference meet and got second place in the 500-freestyle.

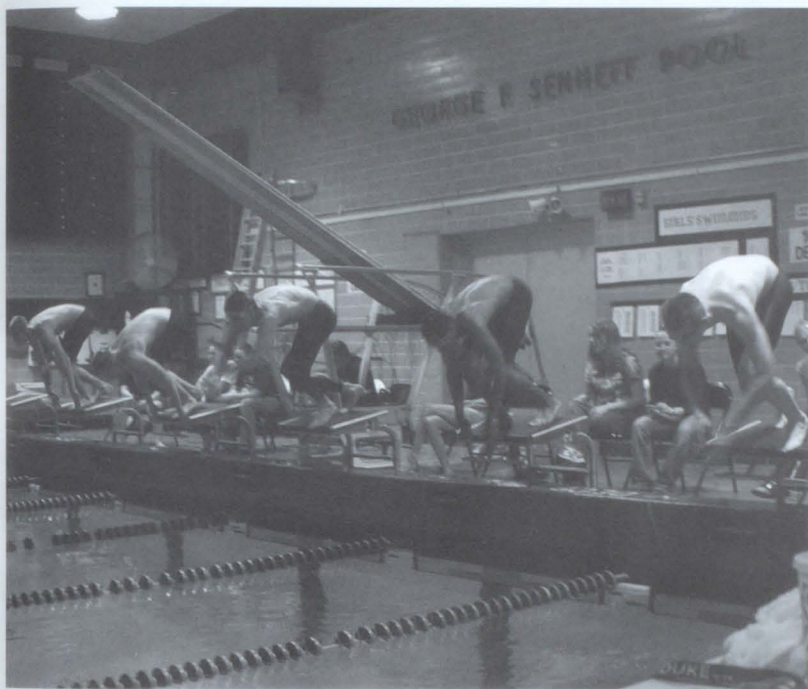

Right: Coming out of her dive and entering the water, Brianne Jenkins maintains perfect form. Brianne's proficiency in gymnastics helped her to perfect many of her dives.

Right: Moving swiftly through the water, Laura Brizgis sprints toward the finish. Laura competed in the 100-yard backstroke at Conference and Sectionals.

At the sound of the buzzer, these guys rapidly spring from the blocks. They each know that one of the keys to a good race is a good start.

Swimmers Make a Splash

According to coach Boothe, "this group of guys was a great group to coach because they worked so hard." This statement must be true because the guys practiced three hours a day and swam four to five miles a day. Leading the way for the Maroons were Bill Hayes in middle distance, Craig Frederiksen in distance, Adamo Alleruzzo in sprints, Erik Johnson in the backstroke, and Sam Griffith with the butterfly. Two outstanding divers this season were Tom McDonald and Tim Doyle. The Moline girls' swim team has remained undefeated in dual meets for the past four years. The twist on this year's team was that head coach Frank Boothe was more impressed with the girls' character than their flawless record. "They are the best team that I ever coached," exclaims coach Boothe. The girls placed second overall in a sectional meet in Pekin. Individuals also performed very well and five headed for state, including, Courtney Boothe, Megan McDoniel, Megan Fromi, Jackie Grimes, and senior Jackie Hazen.

Shouting out commands, Wes McCorkle brings the ball down the court. Wes was a team leader as the starting point guard and leading scorer.

Above: Constantly moving his feet, Kevin Ryan defends his opponent's every move. Kevin is a great ball handler who fills in for McCorkle or Yount when they need a break.

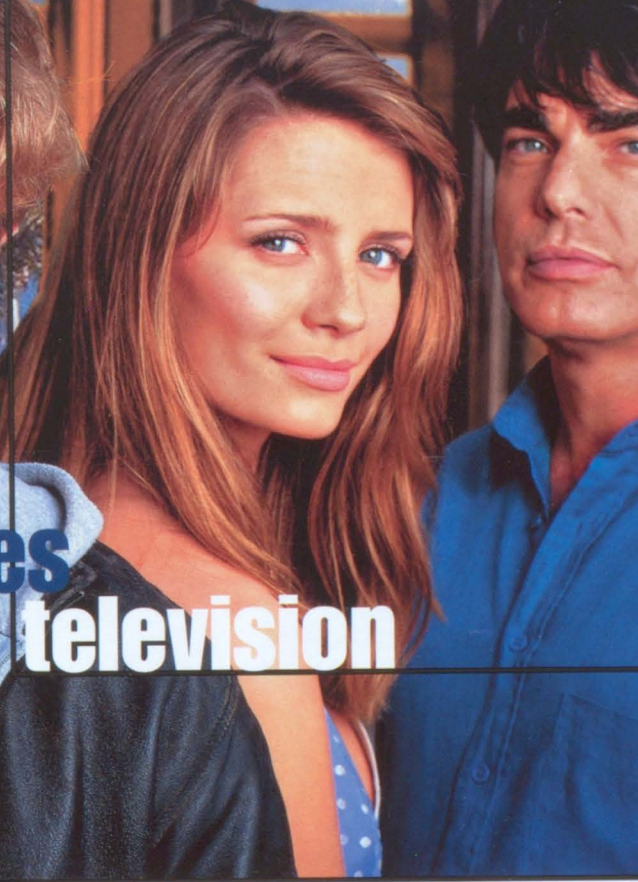

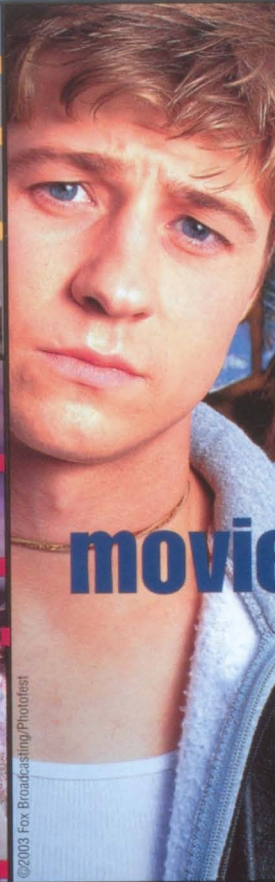

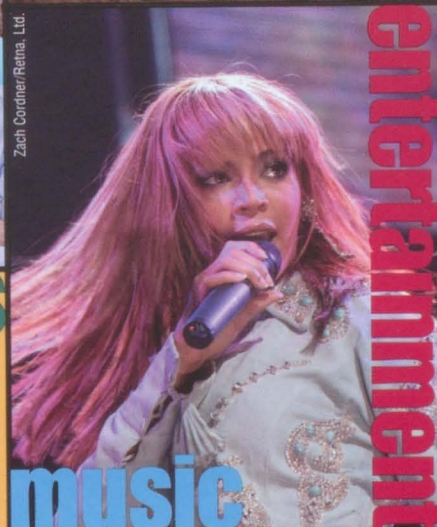

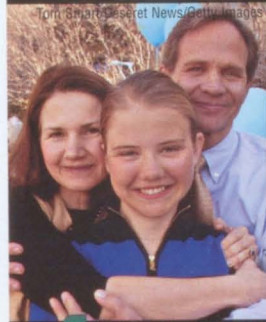

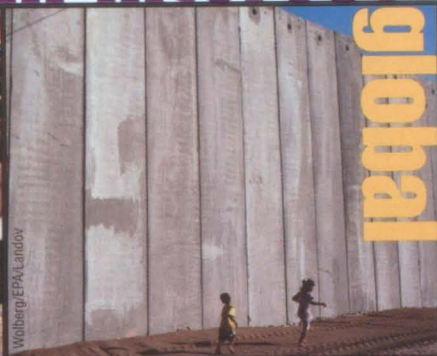

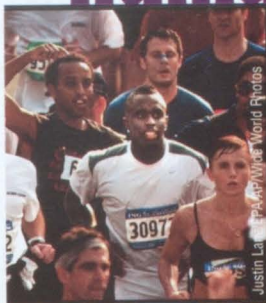

Right: Reaching for the ball, Kyle Laske attempts to tip the ball to one of his teammates. Kyle had a game winning tip in the last second of the Alleman game.

Right: Heading out on to the court, the Maroons are cheered on and pumped up by the crowd and the cheerleaders. The pep band also adds to the excitement by playing "When the Saints go Marching In" as the team takes the court.

Dribbling past the defenders, Paul Bayer makes a perfect layup. Though only a sophomore, Paul is a starter and ranked the sixth best sophomore basketball player in the state.

Boys' Basketball Bangin' the Boards

Some of the returning key players on this year's boys' basketball team were Wes McCorkle, Jordan Salmonson, Paul Bayer, Justin Yount, and Kyle Lasek. According to Coach Frank Dexter, two things need to work for the team to be successful – team chemistry and defensive intensity. Coach Dexter said if the boys manage to polish up on those two aspects of their game, “they have the potential to be outstanding.” Although their record did not exactly reflect it, the boys began the season with a relatively rocky start. The team sloppily won their first few games due to selfish play and lack of team unity. Senior Jordan Salmonson commented, “Before the Thornton game, it was like every man for himself out there. But now, we are playing well because we are playing as a team.” Wes McCorkle concurs, “The team got off to a slow start, but we are gelling at the right time. Things are coming together nicely.” This was evident in the fact that the team made it all the way to the State Tournament in Peoria. The team lost their first game, but can be proud of being a part of the top eight teams in Illinois.

Right: Boxing out her opponent, Caitlyn Eyth prepares to shoot the ball. Caitlyn was a hard worker and strong on defense.

Right: Using all her concentration, Katie Fournier lines up the ball for another successful free throw. As the star of the team, Katie was the team's leading scorer and most valuable player.

Left: With all their might, Anne Larsen and Nikki Hansen fight for the rebound. As captain of the varsity team, Nikki used her experience and love of the game to keep her teammates motivated.

Struggling for the rebound, Courtney Fournier eyes the ball. Though only a freshman, Courtney contributed to the varsity team as an up and coming player.

Lady Maroons Hoop It Up

The Lady Maroons returned with only two seniors from last year's squad, Nikki Hansen and Jilane Smith. They were joined by newcomers seniors, Katie King and Beth Skovronski and key players Ashley Thomas, Jen Larsen, and Katie Fournier. Coach Steve Ford stated, "We were a young, but experienced team. They surprised other teams, but they didn't surprise themselves." One of the girls' biggest wins was a turnaround victory over Rock Island. Coach Ford exclaimed, "The girls decided to win." Junior Katie Fournier averaged 14 points each game. Sophomores Jen Larsen and Ashley Thomas averaged 12 points per game. Senior Nikki Hansen led the team in steals and was one of the strongest rebounders. Overall, the girls had a very successful season. At the sectional tournament, they had a strong start with a win over Geneseo. In the second game they were matched up with Rocky, who they had defeated twice during the season. The girls played their hardest but lost in overtime by two points.

Studying his opponent's every move, Shawn Holland waits for the clock to start. Shawn was a varsity captain and a sectional qualifier.

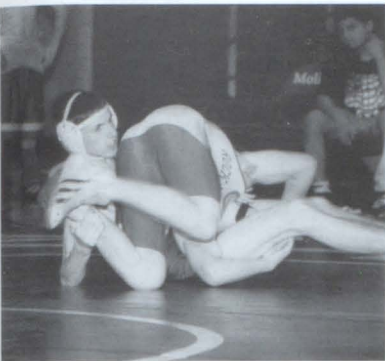

Above: Forcing his opponent to the ground, Erik Gustafson gains the advantage. Coach Carther described Erik as a dedicated and talented freshman.

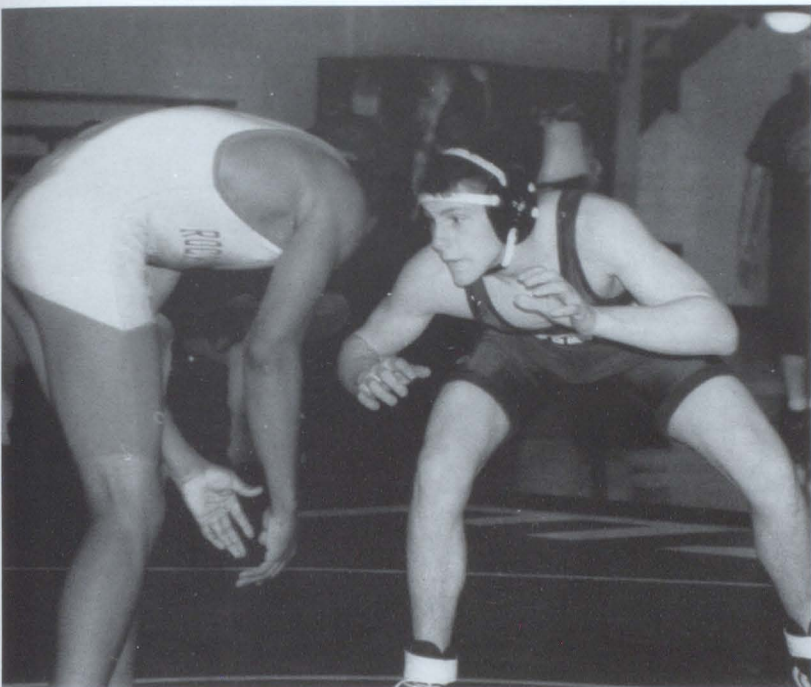

Right: Reaching for his opponent's leg, Christian Rice contemplates his next move. As a hardworking freshman, Christian weighed in at only 103 pounds.

Right: Gripping the arm of his opponent, Harry Hitchcock positions himself for a pin. Harry contributed greatly to the team, but he was injured in the regional tournament.

Left: Fighting for position, Eric Sommers prepares to make his move. Eric displayed great leadership skills as the JV captain.

Staying low, Jeremy Jorgensen plans to take his opponent down. As a junior, Jeremy had great work ethic, including lifting weights in the morning.

Wrestlers Finish Strong

Being a young team, the Moline wrestlers worked extremely hard and improved by great lengths. With two practices a day consisting of a lot of conditioning and the perfection of technique, dedication became essential to the boys' success. Leading this year's team were seniors Shawn Holland, Harry Hitchcock, Mike Sellers, and Eric Sommers. Their season ended with an outstanding record of 16 and 5, and they placed second in the Western Big Six Conference. Varsity sophomore wrestler Tom Reedy commented on the season, "This season was great, and our team worked really hard to get where we are. Hopefully, the future seasons will be even better." Tom, along with four other wrestlers competed in the Regional contest and placed in the top three for their weight classes. The Sectional tournament in DeKalb qualified sophomore Ryan Hanson for the state tournament. Ryan finished second at state. This feat made for an exciting end of the season and an optimistic look into the future.

Displaying perfect form, Brianne Jenkins gracefully leaps over the hurdle. Brianne's best event was the hurdles, but she also competed in sprints.

Above: Rounding the corner, Erik Steffens leads the mile run. Erik's hard work and training in the off-season propelled him to numerous top finishes during the season.

Right: With great intensity, Alec Lance speeds towards the sand pit. Alec's athletic ability allowed him to place in many different events.

Right: Reaching for a few more inches, Stephanie Reagan flies through the air. As a junior, Stephanie had already travelled to State twice in sprinting events.

Left: Beginning her last lap, Brittany Minor executes her length of the 4 X 800 meter relay like a pro. As a three year varsity member, Brittany had many top finishes in distance races.

Eyeing the finish line, Aaron Cook bounds over the last hurdle. As a returning varsity team member, Aaron contributed in hurdles, jumping events, and running events.

Speedsters on Track

After a very successful state appearance last year, the Moline tracksters were ready to do it again. Before the season even began, Michelle Bollaert and Amy Strandlund exclaimed that they were "pumped" and eager for the season to get underway. The girls' and boys' teams prepared for the season by spending weeks in the weightroom and looking forward to getting outside. When asked about her feelings on this year's team, Captain Brittany Minor said, "I think that this season we have a lot of promising newcomers and people ready to step up into leadership roles." Coach Crick SantAmour's expectations for the girls' team was for them to improve with each meet. Returning key members from last year's team included Brittany Minor, Laura Gustafson, D'Ann Wicks, Hannah Swanson, Brianne Jenkins, Stephanie Reagan, Caitlyn Eyth, Janelle Booth, Aaron Cook, Erik Steffens, Alec Lance, Sean DeBuysere, Mike Verre, John Stoelk, and Ted Nocella.

Using all her strength, Annalise Smith launches the ball onto the field with her head. Although it looks uncomfortable to spectators, soccer players who use this technique are able to outplay their opponents.

Above: Dribbling down the field, Lori Davies looks for an open teammate. Lori's natural athletic ability made her a great offensive and defensive player.

Right: Studying the field intently, Leslie Heist plans her next move. Though only a sophomore, Leslie was a leader of Moline's defense.

Right: Displaying perfect form, Courtney Fournier prepares to kick the ball down the field. Courtney was a great all-around player who played both offense and defense.

Left: Keeping the ball between her feet, Kayla Maere concentrates on her next move. Kayla's efforts contributed to many victories.

Battling with an opposing player, Brynn Boyle keeps master control of the ball. As a junior, Brynn helped keep Moline's defense solid.

Superstar Soccer Season

With snow still on the ground, the girls' soccer team could already be seen practicing in the bowl. The team began indoor practices and weightlifting very early in order to prepare for the upcoming season. Conditioning and cardiovascular training are always the first step towards a successful season. This year's conditioning entailed a lot of running to prepare the girls for a grueling season. Junior Kelly Mahieu exclaimed, "This year's team has great defense." Annalise Smith stated, "The team has a lot of potential, but everyone needs to work really hard to get up to the level of the two previous years." Key returning players for this year's team were seniors Keeley Rosenthal, juniors Annalise Smith, Lori Davies, Anna Engelbrecht, Matty VanDamme, Kayla Maere, Kelly Mahieu, Brynn Boyle, and sophomores Leslie Heist, Emily Welser, and Meghan McDoniel.

Keeping his feet in motion, Evan Nelson prepares himself for a volley. As a returning varsity player, Evan was always calm, cool, and collected during practices and matches.

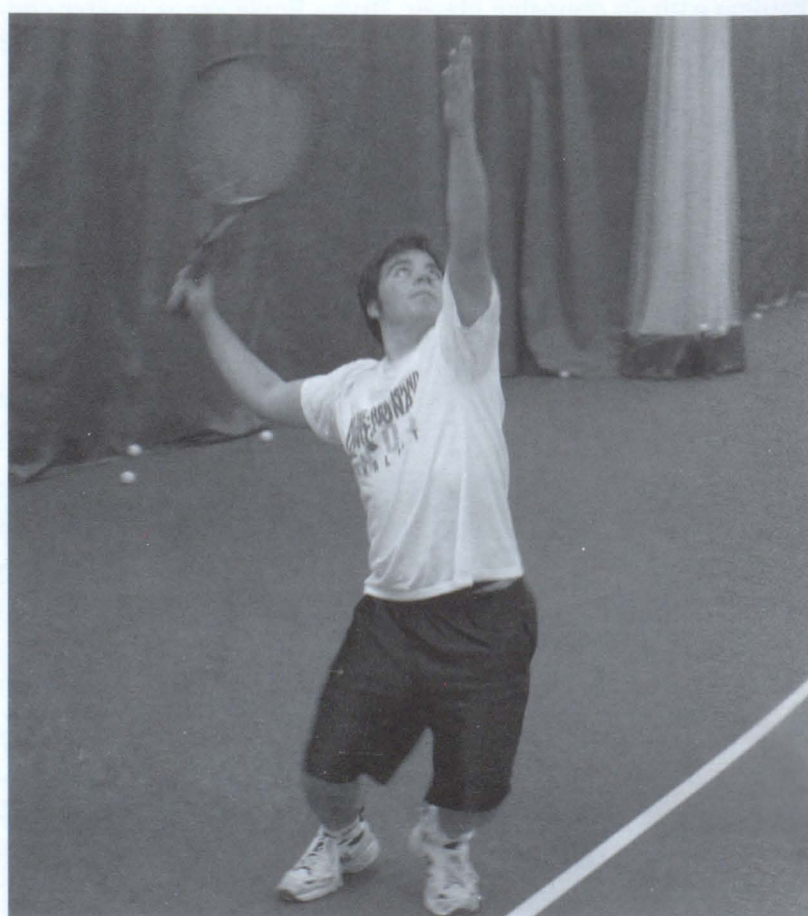

Above: With a left-handed forehand, Jason Rauba brings the racket back for a powerful hit. As a senior, Jason has worked his way up into the top six players on the team.

Right: Maintaining perfect form, Alex Hallene serves another ace. To play at the varsity level, Alex has been working hard since freshman year.

Following through, Tom Goebel intently watches his opponent's next move. Coming back from an injury at the beginning of the season, Tom contributed to many of the team's victories.

Tennis Swings Into Action

Beginning as early as February, the Moline boys' tennis team kicked into gear. Although the boys' first real meet was not until April 1, senior Tom Goebel stated, "Early training is essential for quality performance throughout the entire season." Tom's thoughts definitely came into play, as the team was working out in the weight room, open gyms, and playing basketball. This year's team had a lot of talent returning to the courts. Seniors coming back for glory were Alex Hallene, Tom Goebel, Chris Wood, Evan Nelson, and Jason Rauba. To add depth to the varsity team were juniors David Fox and David Revel and sophomores John Biegert and Jay Welvaert. Since those boys formed the most competitive local team, they often traveled to Chicago during the weekends for more fierce competition. In addition to Coach Derouin's retirement, the boys worked hard to contribute to his final 37th season.

Front Row: Cameron Bruhn, Sri Yerra, David Hawk, Tom Lazenby, Tom Goebel, Evan Nelson, Bryan Hallene, Alex Hallene, T.J. After a successful play, Kelsey Lovell and Ashley Clement congratulate each other. As pitcher and catcher, it was Kelsey's and Ashley's teamwork that contributed to many crucial plays.

Above: Focusing on the pitch, Ashley Clement prepares herself for the delivery. Not only was Ashley great at bat, she was also the team's catcher.

Right: Trying to beat her opponent to the base, Maggie Amundson flies toward the base. As a senior, Maggie played first base and was a leader on the team.

Right: Pitching with all her might, Kelsey Lovell attempts another strike. Always making her teammates laugh, Kelsey was a great asset to the team.

Left: Encouraging the team, the coach was always helpful. In order to keep the girls' spirits up, there was constant encouragement from the coaches and the fans.

Sprinting to first base, Erin Koenig uses all her effort. Erin is a left-hand hitter known for her speed.

Softball Pitches Strikes

Early in the off-season, the Moline girls' softball team began preparing for the season. They could often be heard in the gym throwing, pitching, and hitting. During pitching and hitting practices, lines of people alternate hitting, pitching, and fielding balls. The individualized attention given to the softball players helps to correct mistakes before heading out to the field. The practices help to refine the skills of the players in all aspects of the game. This year's team needed to fill many important positions because of the large group of seniors that graduated last year. Many of the girls stepped up and willingly filled these roles. Junior Ashley Clement played catcher, Kelsey Lovell, also a junior, was pitcher, and senior Maggie Amundson played first base. Other key returning players included Whitney Godwin, Katie Doyle, Ally Phillips, and Nikki Hansen.

Preparing to take a swing at the ball, Justin Yount concentrates on the pitch. Justin put his speed to good use as the team's short-stop.

Above: After making an excellent catch, Jerry Burkhead returns the ball to the pitcher. Jerry's comical outlook on life always brightened his teammates' toughest days.

Right: With his game face on, Mike Jones sprints to the plate. As a senior, Mike was a starter and a leader for the team.

Right: Stepping up to the plate, Austin Vallejo visualizes his hit. Austin contributed to many of Moline's victories as pitcher and in right field.

Left: Beating the ball to the plate, Blake Boster slides in to first. As the fastest member of the team, Blake often made it to the plate before the ball.

Keeping his chin down, Bobby Nees awaits the pitch. Bobby returned to the varsity team this year to play second base.

Batters Swing Away

Though it was still winter and snowing outside, the Moline Maroons baseball team was already preparing for a great season ahead of them. The drive for the Maroons this season stemmed from their upsetting loss at Super-Sectionals last year, making them one game shy of qualifying for State. Head Coach Derek Lindauer had his team practicing throughout all of February, getting them ready to be on the field at their first chance. The Maroons faced their first competition at the Limestone Tournament on March 26. Their hard work in the pre-season was evident. Senior Austin Vallejo felt positive about the season as he stated, "This year's off-season hitting practice went very well." Junior Kevin Olson also shed some light on the season. He said, "We have a lot of young talent, and we should have a very good season with all of the off-season hard work and leadership by the upperclassmen."

At the Friday night basketball game, the Contemporaires perform their traditional kickline. Their many hours of practice each week is evident in the height of their kicks.

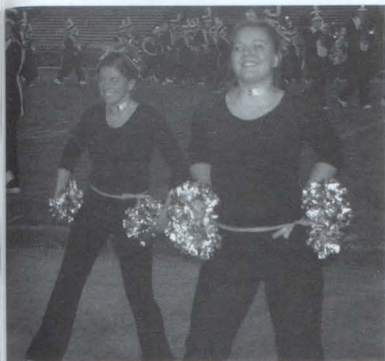

Above: Testing her flexibility, Jessica Lance gets ready for her meet. Jessica was an asset to the team in both bars and floor.

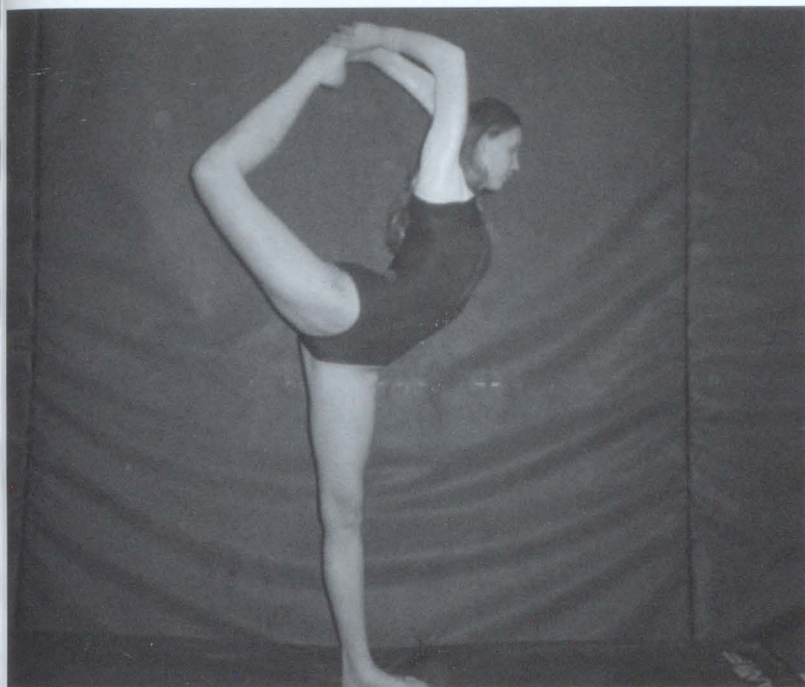

Right: All smiles, Sarah Stafford moves to the music. This dance, performed at half-time, was choreographed to the music from the movie Center Stage.

Right: Just hanging out, members of the varsity gymnastics team do their best impression of monkeys. The girls' friendship on and off the mats made the season successful and enjoyable.

Left: With their sparkling pom-poms, Keeley Rosenthal and Nikki Fisher perform an upbeat routine for the Homecoming football game. The Contemporaires performed during half-time of each home football game.

Balancing on one foot, Brianne Jenkins exhibits perfect form. Though only a sophomore, Brianne helped to improve the team's scores and made it to Sectionals.

Gymnasts Flip Away the Competition; Contemporaires Light up Half Time

Overshadowed by a myriad of other popular athletic events, Moline girls' gymnastics is forgotten by a majority of the student population. However, gymnastics is just as challenging and time-consuming as any other sport. There are competitions every weekend and two-hour practices each night after school. This season, the girls participated in several meets, pulling ninth in Illinois's best, fourth in Oswego, and first in their home meet. Marguerite Day, a sophomore stand-out, said, "We lost a lot of seniors last year, and it has been kind of tough this season. But, the future seasons are looking really good for us."

The MHS dance team, the Contemporaires, practice three days a week at 6:30 AM at Wharton Field House and perform at home football and basketball games. The dancers work rigorously, and this year, Kelsey Malmstead and Krystle Gravitt choreographed many original dances for the team.

During their routine for competition, the Moline competition cheerleading squad completes the final mount. The squad participated in many competitions this year and had a very good season as a result of their hardwork and dedication.

Above: In the homecoming parade this year, the varsity cheerleaders were escorted by the Moline fire department. After much hard work practicing for the game that night, it was nice for them to be able to just relax and enjoy the ride.

Right: During a stunt group competition, sophomore Emily Birdsell completes the routine proudly. The girls worked very hard and spent many hours practicing for this competition, in which they received first place.

Right: Cheering and smiling during the varsity football game, cheerleaders Jade Wubben, Keeley Rosenthal, Jaimi Colvin, and Brittany Stechalin get the crowd excited and ready for a victory.

Left: Taking a break from practice, these Junior cheerleaders are enjoying their experience at cheerleading camp. The cheerleaders worked hard over the summer in order to prepare for the season.

As they dance before a varsity game, Juniors Lindsay Jackson and Stephanie Reagan are all smiles. The cheerleaders do their best to show school spirit as well as getting the crowd involved with the cheers.

Pep Girls are Prepared

Since cheerleading has recently been considered a sport at Moline High School, many changes have taken place. Of one thing, Moline's cheer squad practices five days a week. The practices are still held after school for an hour and a half. The cheerleaders usually start off with a series of jumps, stunts, and tumbling. The girls then rehearse that week's cheer, dance, and every other detail that prepares them for their game that coming weekend. They also prepared for two competitions in February and March. Sophomore Megan Duquette feels that it is the competition part of cheerleading that makes it feel like a sport. Sarah Cooper observed, "We have grown more as a squad working together, and we have learned so much more since freshman year. It's really good to see how we have improved from cheering at freshman games to varsity games." Senior Erin Duquette added her wisdom of four years of cheering, "Moline High School cheerleading has come a long way in four years and has gained a lot of respect."

Acknowledgements

The creation of the 2004 "M" would not be possible without the contributions of many individuals. In particular, the staff wishes to thank the following people:

Photographic Arts for their willingness and ability to take any and every picture imaginable.

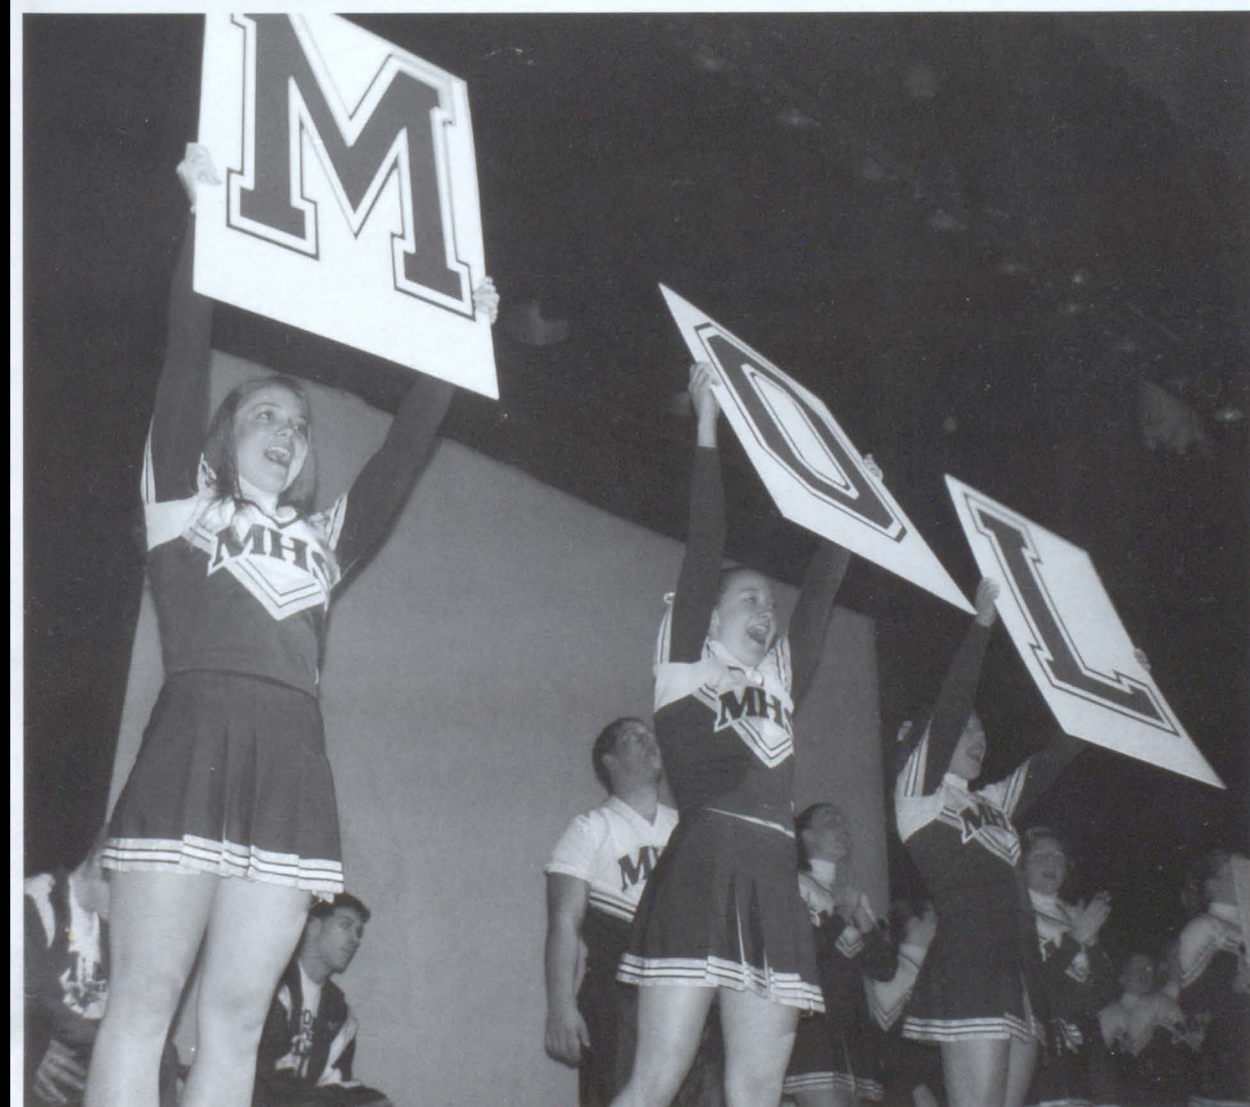

The custodial staff of MHS for allowing us to work late into the night in a consistently clean Publications Office.

Mrs. Marilyn May for keeping our financial records straight and helping us through our first year of confusion and inexperience.

Mr. Jay Bohnsack and Mr. Ian Belby for acknowledging our technical difficulties and doing their best to make our computers work correctly.

Finding Your Spotlight

Long before the curtains are drawn and the applause is over, it becomes obvious which member of the cast is the star. But during the curtain call, everyone has a chance to be in the spotlight. Small roles do not exist because insignificant people do not exist. As we stare into the future and embark on a journey to discover our own spotlight and voice in the world, we must remember those experiences that made us feel like the star of the show – writing a perfect paper, winning the game, performing a moving concert, or spending time with close friends. Without acknowledging the locations of the spotlights from our past, it is impossible to find the future endeavors that will allow us to shine in new spotlights.

Top: Concentrating on her flag corps routine during halftime of a home football game, Kiona Ervin performs for a large crowd. Participating in activities such as Flag Corps is a way in which many students choose to find their spotlights.

Above: Walking through the halls to the next class is sometimes monotonous, but it is in the classroom that many students discover their spotlights.

Leading a cheer during the before-school pep rally for the state-bound MHS basketball team, these cheerleaders help the crowd get excited. Although not all students can find a spotlight on the basketball court, nearly everyone can find a spotlight in the cheering section while supporting the team and helping them to achieve success.
